How to Read This Book

This is a "choose your own adventure" style of book, meaning that unlike most books it is not intended to be read from beginning to end. If you have not read one of these before, they are very easy. You start at page one, and read until you reach a choice. Depending on your choice, it will tell you to go to a different page and continue from there. Continue reading and making choices to enjoy a unique story based on your decisions!

Choices are presented as a table, like in this example. In the left column are the different options, and the right column are the page numbers to go to:

Option	Page
Order waffles	5
Order pancakes	6

If you are reading this in PDF form with a reader that supports this function, the page numbers will be clickable to take you directly there. Otherwise, you will need to either manually scroll or physically turn pages if you are reading a printed copy.

This book should be considered a work in progress. New versions will come out periodically with added branches and paths. While you are reading, you may see choices where the page number is zero for some or all of the options. Those are options that haven't been written yet, but will be added in future versions. Please note that page numbers may change between versions, so it is unlikely you will be able to start in one version and finish in the next.

This story, including any illustrations, has been created and edited without any use of AI tools/assistants/etc. It is the author's belief that AI should stay out of art. While I respect anyone's right to disagree, my writing will never use AI. I do write small programs to help me catch errors (for example, searching for chunks that exist but are missing a call in a main book file to actually appear), but those are normal computer programs and will never use AI, machine learning, etc.

This story is a work of fiction. Any resemblence to actual people/places/events is entirely coincidental. Also, this story contains acts which should not be attempted in real life and does not constitute advice, suggestion, instruction, etc.

This story contains material suitable for adults and should not be read by anyone who is under 18 or for whom it is illegal to view adult and/or sexual material.

Finally, this story contains a wide variety of kinks and fetishes. Given that it is a choose-your-own-adventure style book, not all of these will come up on any given read through. Your choices could lead to a perfectly tame story with lots of hugs and hand-holding. However, be aware that some content may be extreme, unusual, or downright bizarre depending on your choices.

Belrye and the Summoner

As the knocker slams against the large door with a loud thump, you think about the events that led you here. Bit by bit, it seemed as if the rest of your life had fallen apart over the past year. It had started with losing your job. When the company you had worked for closed its doors, you were sure you would quickly find a new job and be back on your feet. But days turned to weeks, then to months, until the unemployment checks ran out. Every place you tried, the response was either rejection or silence. With just a few days left before losing your home (squalid apartment or not, it was still your home), you were walking around the town, desperately looking for a place you hadn't tried a few times already.

Suddenly, a piece of paper caught by the wind had blown against your leg. You had grabbed it, but just before crumpling it up to throw it away, a single word had caught your eye: "hope". Without thinking, you had started to read.

Feeling lost?
Need purpose?
We all deserve hope in our lives.

Want to belong to something greater?
We are looking for motivated individuals to help out at our temple, at the edge of town.

Fair pay, and no experience needed.
Training will be provided on the job.

Apply anytime---our doors are always open!

At the bottom was an address that you recognized from just out of town.

Now that you thought of it, you remembered driving past a building out there. It had the look of a religious building, but no symbols on it that you could recall. It had been a church when you first moved here, but the last you had heard it had been sold.

A few hour later, you had found yourself walking there as the Sun set. You lived in a peaceful, sleepy old town. The biggest crime you could remember hearing about were some teenagers going out cow-tipping, so you felt perfectly safe walking at night. Still, the walk home would be quite dark.

You are startled back to the present by the door creaking open and a figure peeking out. It looks like an old man, but much of his features are obscured by a hooded robe. "Welcome, friend. How can we be of assistance to you?"

You stumble with your words for a moment, though this isn't all that far from what you had expected. "Um. . . I saw your job posting and am here to apply?"

"Ah, yes. Come in, come in!" He pulls the door open the rest of the way and motions for you to enter. "It is a chilly evening tonight. Could I interest you in some tea?" You take him up on his offer, and a few minutes later you are sitting at an ornate desk.

"Now, you were looking for a job, yes?"

You had told yourself that you wouldn't let your desperation show. You knew that an interview was the time to appear confident and capable. The year had taken its toll, though, leaving you at your wit's end. You feel your shoulders slump as you start to reply. "I just don't know where to go. I need a job, but I have been looking for almost a year now, and—"

The old man holds up a hand for you to pause. "Wait, don't I know you?" He lowers the hood of his robe.

"Wait, Tom?!" Tom had been one of your coworkers at your last job, but the two of you had fallen out of contact after the company closed.

"Well," he says with a chuckle, "I suppose this concludes the interview. You're a hard worker, and I know you'll do just fine. Of course, there is something you must see before I can make the official job offer. If you weren't already sitting down, I would suggest doing so. Normally we take things much more slowly, but from what you and Stephanie used to talk about back in the breakroom, I think you'll probably take it better than most." You aren't sure how to reply, so you sit there as he turns his head and says, "You may enter."

A door behind him opens, and a creature walks into the room. As they walk over to you, it is a very impressive costume. The goatlike features, the lifelike fur, and even the gait as they walk on their hooves looks incredibly realistic. They appear to be male, though of course who knows under the costume. Over the costume, they are wearing a simple workman's outfit with a red sash.

The longer you look, though, the more you start to notice strange things. The twitch of an ear, the eyes actually blinking and appearing to focus just a little too perfectly on you, the lack of any visible seams around the black fur of his face. "Wait. . . ," you glance over at Tom, seeing a bemused expression, "This isn't a—"

"Allow me to introduce Kletano, a completely real demon. I know, I know, 'demons don't really exist,' right? Well, the proof otherwise is standing right in front of you."

The creature (Kletano, apparently?) bows in front of you. "A pleasure to make your acquaintance. I am sure you must have many questions, and it would be our pleasure to answer them. Brother Tom, here, clearly feels you are a trustworthy individual, and would make a noble addition to our cause."

You aren't entirely sure whether you sat for several seconds, minutes, or hours before you can finally manage to get a word out. "What?"

Kletano's gruff voice continues, "I know it is much to take in. I understand humans are no longer taught about us in your world, or about other planes of existence in general. And of course, what little is still remembered of us here is not the most flattering. But you will find that we work quite well with humans, and vice-versa. Perhaps you need time to think ab—"

"When can I start?"

Kletano blinks in surprise, but Tom just chuckles. Regaining composure, the demon asks, "Pardon me, it is just that most do not process the sudden revelation so quickly. Are you sure?"

"Yes," you reply firmly, "Look, the last year has been a hard one for me. And maybe I don't fully know what I am getting myself into here. But whatever you are offering, it is far better than the world out there where nobody can find a use for me."

"Excellent," Tom says, clapping his hands. "Well then, since that is decided, let us induct our new member."

Kletano excuses himself to go get the registry, returning with a thick, leather-bound book. He sets it down on the desk, and Tom politely dismisses him before opening it.

He appears ready to write your name, then pauses. "It has been a while since we have spoken, so I would like to make sure this hasn't changed in the meantime. Should I write you down as a brother, or as a sister?"

"Oh, uh, brother." You suppose you should have been ready for that. Tom writes your name down, then checks a calendar on the desk and writes today's date. "So, uh, what exactly am I supposed to do here? Like I was assuming we were talking about things like shoveling the walk or painting walls. But after seeing, well..." you nod toward the door where Kletano had left, "I probably shouldn't assume anything."

He gives you a grin. "Well, let me tell you a bit about our work here. Let's take a walk." He rises from his chair and leads you to the same door Kletano had left through. In the back of your mind, you were expecting a torchlit corridor stretching down into darkness, distant roars, and magic words echoing up to you. Well, you were right about the corridor part, though it is lit with the kinds of lightbulbs you would see in any other building. As you walk, you pass another demon. This one is female and seems to be in a bit of a hurry carrying a mug of coffee. She and Tom exchange nods as you pass.

"New brother?"

"New brother."

"Welcome, new brother! Sorry, late for a meeting." This all seems oddly familiar, like what you might see at a typical office. What is going on here?

A few steps later, Tom leads you through a side-door and into a room. This is much more what you were expecting. An old woman in a pale gray robe is seated behind a small desk, with several shelves of books behind her. She looks at you, and then turns to Tom.

"Hello, Terra. A new brother has joined our order." Turning to you, he begins to explain, "So, let me tell you a bit about our order. As you have started to see firsthand, there are other planes of existence out there besides our own. In fact, there are a vast multitude of them, populated by an equally wide variety of creatures. Our mission here is to begin to establish diplomatic relations outside of our plane. We feel that it is better to reach out on our own, rather than wait to be contacted by the first one to take an interest in us."

"So, since those are most definitely demons, I'm thinking you chose Hell. Don't get me wrong, I've never been the religious type, but..."

"But why Hell?" Tom asks rhetorically. "Actually, Hell and Earth have a long and complicated history together. At times it has been peaceful, and at other times less so. We felt the best place to start was with a society we have some common history with. Another reason we were drawn to Hell was because their society is quite stable. While their system of government resembles ancient feudalism here, the overall structure has not changed in thousands of years."

"Also, the council chose Hell, and that was that," Terra chimes in, casting a glance at Tom. Something about her expression makes you uneasy.

"Ah yes, not everyone agrees with the council's decision, but I suppose time will tell. What we are doing now is something of an exchange program. We are summoning demons and helping them to integrate into our order. Your job will be to assist with this summoning and training process. I am sure it sounds a bit scary, but don't worry. Terra here will be training and supervising you." She gives you a confident nod.

This all sounds quite fascinating, but at the moment you have a more mundane concern. "So, um, what is the pay cycle here? See, my landlord is kicking me out in a few days."

"Oh," Terra replies, "that actually makes it easier. You see, we typically prefer summoners stay here at the temple. You are free to come and go, of course, but the nature of your duties make it far easier if you are on site. It sounds like that will not be a problem?" You shake your head. "Excellent. As for your things, let me show you to your room."

The three of you leave and continue further down the hallway, reaching an elevator that appears to have been installed much more recently. "Summoning section five," she says as you enter, and the elevator dings. You feel the elevator start to move quickly downward, before it comes to a stop and the door opens. This, you realize, is more like you expected. The walls are made of stone brick, and strange symbols cover the walls and ceiling. The corridor is lit by torches in wall sconces, and robed figures occasionally move from room to room.

"Yours is the first room on the left, so it should be easy to remember. Summoning section five, room one." She points to an unmarked stone brick beside the door. "Press your hand there."

You press your palm against it, finding it strangely warm. After you pull away, the brick starts to glow with another strange symbol. "There, the room is now keyed to you. This door will only open if you press your palm against it. Quite an effective door lock, wouldn't you say?"

"So wait, does this mean I'm some kind of wizard?" The strangeness of everything is starting to sink in.

"You are no more a wizard than a programmer is a mage. The world is governed by certain rules. Through our... 'partnership' with Hell, we have gained access to new types of technology, which work in ways you are unfamiliar with."

You experimentally put your hand back against the stone, and the door opens smoothly inward. The room is about the size of a typical bedroom, and has a bed and writing desk inside. One thing you note is the lack of a power outlet. They must not have electricity down here. An hour ago, you would have thought that strange.

"You will be able to get moved in after you see the other room." She leads you out (it looks like the lock only works one way), and gestures to the room on the other side of the lock stone. "So, your right hand opened the door to the left. Now use your left hand. The same stone unlocks both doors. Since it is between the doors, use the hand closest to the stone to unlock the door you are standing in front of."

You press against it, and as the door opens you walk inside. This room looks far more like a dungeon. It is unfurnished, apart from a set of four shackles hanging from the ceiling, a sink, a floor drain, a table, and a single chair. "This room is where you will do the summoning. It is left unfurnished since each summoner tends to set things up differently. Unlike the other room, this room is keyed to you for both entering and exiting. This is done as a safety precaution, but we will talk more about that later."

The next few hours are a blur. You are shown the rest of the facilities, ranging from restrooms to summoning-ink storage. This is followed by Tom driving you to your house to collect your things (What possessions you have left fit in a suitcase.) The two of you talk the whole way, but it all goes in one ear and out the other. You come back to what is now your home as the Sun is rising, make your way to summoning section five, room one, and fall into bed. You don't even remember your head hitting the pillow before you are asleep.

You are awakened sometime later by a pleasant chiming sound. You are not sure where it is coming from, but as soon as you sit up in bed it stops. Unsure what else to do, you arrange the items from your suitcase in the room. The old photo goes on the desk, your spare clothing goes in the closet, and a few minutes later you are moved in. It still doesn't feel like home, but maybe that will change with time. You take a change of clothes and a towel, then head to the shower.

After your shower, you are finally feeling more like yourself. Fifteen minutes to just process everything that has been happening made a big difference. You also had a chance to look at a clock, and realized it was evening again. You had slept through the day, but that meant surprisingly little with most things beneath the surface. You make your way to Terra's office, assuming this should be her shift again. Sure enough, you find her there. Sitting on the desk are a robe and a thin, leather-bound book. "Ah, welcome back. Did you sleep well?" You nod in reply. "Excellent, you looked pretty glazed over at the end of last night. So, excited for your first summon?"

"Yeah. And more than a bit scared. I've seen enough movies to know I don't want to do this wrong."

"Movies often get things wrong, but that is one thing they are right about. Here," she gestures to the book and robe, "these are for you." She gives you a moment to put the robe on over your clothes. For as hot as it looks, you find it surprisingly comfortable. "Now, let's go to your summoning room and get started. The process takes a while and must be done carefully, but it is not complicated." The two of you walk together down to your summoning room. It still looks just as uninviting as it had the night before. Still, you open your book and start looking at it. Inside is a large collection of symbols, diagrams, and instructions.

"Now, there are two main things that we will need to do, and they must be done in this order. First, we will be making a ward. And second, we will be making a summoning circle. Now, the rooms themselves have a very powerful ward on them that prevents demons from perceiving anything outside of these walls. Once they have been properly trained, you can allow them out. Any questions so far?"

"So this room looks really uncomfortable, especially with the shackles and stuff. From what Tom was saying, shouldn't the room be setup to be more welcoming first?"

Terra lets out a long sigh. "So, when a demon arrives, we never know who we are going to get. Some are easy to work with, and others are definitely not. Some are immediately hostile. This room is here to contain them until they have been prepared to work with us. Brother Tom has never seen a demon who hasn't been fully prepared yet, so his head is a bit in the clouds when it comes to the whole process." Something about her phrasing again makes you feel uneasy, but since she is the expert here, you decide to follow her lead.

"Wait, so the demon is locked in here, right?" Terra nods. "Shouldn't there be some sort of toilet or something in here for them? Like I get that a bed can be added, but I don't see any sort of plumbing in here aside from the sink and that drain."

"Oh, right. So demons generally don't need to eat, though there are some exceptions. For example, a lust demon feeds on lust, a wrath demon consumes anger, etc. Since they don't eat, there is no need for a toilet. The same goes for drinking. They are able to eat, but it is not needed for them. Getting you aroused and eating the emotion is like a late-night taco run for a lust demon."

She walks you through the process of drawing the ward on the floor, using a large bottle of ink and a fingertip. The symbols, while strange, are not too complex. As you complete the final symbol, it glows brightly along with the ink on your fingertip. Over a few seconds, it fades to a dull green, and the ink on your finger disappears completely.

"Now," she says, "this ward will prevent the demon from being able to harm you. They will not be able to cause you physical pain. However, they are still fully capable of lying, tricking you, angering you, insulting you, etc. Be prepared for that. They are also prevented from directly damaging or touching the ward or the summoning circle you will be drawing next. Again, though, they can trick you or try to indirectly cause you to do it. The ward itself is very fragile. A single smudge is all it takes to deactivate it. Be exceedingly careful about that."

"So, let's get started on the summoning circle. By the way, before you complete that, you will need to let me out of the room. The ward protects you, and only you. Once you have summoned a demon, it is not safe to bring anyone else in here, either demon or human. I will guide you until you are ready to draw the final symbol." You nod.

"Okay, this is where things get interesting. First, draw a circle like the diagram here." After you have drawn it, she says, "Very good. Next is the symbol for the type of demon you will be summoning. I have been told by the council to have you summon a lust demon."

"Oh, uh, okay. What are they like? Do they try to seduce you or something?"

"Lust demons are pretty basic, actually. They feed off of human lust in the same way that you eat food. They can actually starve if they don't get enough of it, but the more they get, the more powerful they become. Their abilities are generally limited to body reshaping, either their own or others."

"Am I supposed to try to resist being attracted to it?"

"Actually, attraction is encouraged. But don't lose sight of what is going on. You can feed them lust, but be sure not to let them manipulate you. Normally you would have spent weeks or months training for this, but we are actually quite short on summoners."

You mull that over for a moment, then nod and examine the symbol. It is rather simple, yet still looks oddly suggestive. You then start carefully drawing it out on the floor. It takes a little time, but you finish copying it with Terra's supervision. This is followed by the remaining symbols, one by one. Eventually, you stand up, stretch, and admire your handiwork. There is one line left on the last symbol.

"Okay, time to let me out. Now, the next section of your book explains everything you need to know. But if you have any questions at all, as long as the demon is safely restrained, you can come and ask myself or any of our brothers and sisters." She demonstrates to you that she is unable to open the door, even pulling back with all her strength. You walk over and let her out. The door feels heavy, but there is no resistance otherwise.

Now alone, you decide to check the book before drawing that last line. It is less a set of instructions and more a set of guidelines:

- The demon feeds on your lust and gains power from it.
- The more lust you feed it, the more it can reshape itself.
- The demon can reshape you as well, though doing so requires more lust.
- It wants you to be attracted to it, and is generally very open-minded about changes.
- They are low-ranking demons back home, so kind treatment goes a long way.

And so, with a bit of rushed instruction and five bullet points, you complete the final symbol.

Nothing.

You flip back to the summoning circle reference, comparing it to what you drew. Everything seems to be matching up. You are struggling a bit to read the symbols, though. Was it always this dark in here?

Suddenly, a blinding flash from the center of the circle startles you, causing you to drop the book and step away. It is strange to look at, burning your eyes like staring at the Sun, only it appears to be pitch black. It slowly expands to fill the circle, stopping when it reaches the edges.

"H-hello?" You hear a voice coming through it, like someone speaking on the other side.

Thinking about another few bullet points that really should have been in that list, you reply, "Hello. Are, uh, you a demon?"

There is a sound like a distorted gasp. "You're a human? Are you summoning me?!" From the description Terra had given, you were expecting something a bit more sudden and forceful, like the demon appearing on the floor or suspended in midair.

"Yes, you are being summoned. Could you come through the portal-thing, please?" You see the edges of the portal starting to flicker back toward the center.

"Oh, okay! Hang on, let me grab my—no, there's no time! Okay, coming through!" With a single bound, a demon leaps up through the portal, standing with its hooves on the edges as the portal closes beneath them. After it closes, you are finally able to get a good look.

The demon stands at about five and a half feet, you would guess, and is covered in short, brown fur. They are also completely naked. Figuring that a lust demon wouldn't mind, your eyes drift from the large, curled goat horns, down the face, and down to their body. You first notice a good-sized pair of breasts, fully exposed. As you look down further, you see their body is fairly lean. Though between their legs, rather than seeing the pink slit of a pussy, you see the sheath of a cock and a pair of rather large balls.

"Sorry, I know you were probably hoping I would be stacked and hung and stuff. But I can be! I promise! And—"

You are awakened sometime later by a pleasant chiming sound. You are not sure where it is coming from, but as soon as you sit up in bed it stops. Unsure what else to do, you arrange the items from your suitcase in the room. The old photo goes on the desk, your spare clothing goes in the closet, and a few minutes later you are moved in. It still doesn't feel like home, but maybe that will change with time. You take a change of clothes and a towel, then head to the shower.

After your shower, you are finally feeling more like yourself. Fifteen minutes to just process everything that has been happening made a big difference. You also had a chance to look at a clock, and realized it was evening again. You had slept through the day, but that meant surprisingly little with most things beneath the surface. You make your way to Terra's office, assuming this should be her shift again. Sure enough, you find her there. Sitting on the desk are a robe and a thin, leather-bound book. "Ah, welcome back. Did you sleep well?" You nod in reply. "Excellent, you looked pretty glazed over at the end of last night. So, excited for your first summon?"

"Movies often get things wrong, but that is one thing they are right about. Here," she gestures to the book and robe, "these are for you." She gives you a moment to put the robe on over your clothes. For as hot as it looks, you find it surprisingly comfortable. "Now, let's go to your summoning room and get started. The process takes a while and must be done carefully, but it is not complicated." The two of you walk together down to your summoning room. It still looks just as uninviting as it had the night before. Still, you open your book and start looking at it. Inside is a large collection of symbols, diagrams, and instructions.

"Now, there are two main things that we will need to do, and they must be done in this order. First, we will be making a ward. And second, we will be making a summoning circle. Now, the rooms themselves have a very powerful ward on them that prevents demons from perceiving anything outside of these walls. Once they have been properly trained, you can allow them out. Any questions so far?"

"So this room looks really uncomfortable, especially with the shackles and stuff. From what Tom was saying, shouldn't the room be setup to be more welcoming first?"

Terra lets out a long sigh. "So, when a demon arrives, we never know who we are going to get. Some are easy to work with, and others are definitely not. Some are immediately hostile. This room is here to contain them until they have been prepared to work with us. Brother Tom has never seen a demon who hasn't been fully prepared yet, so his head is a bit in the clouds when it comes to the whole process." Something about her phrasing again makes you feel uneasy, but since she is the expert here, you decide to follow her lead.

"Wait, so the demon is locked in here, right?" Terra nods. "Shouldn't there be some sort of toilet or something in here for them? Like I get that a bed can be added, but I don't see any sort of plumbing in here aside from the sink and that drain."

"Oh, right. So demons generally don't need to eat, though there are some exceptions. For example, a lust demon feeds on lust, a wrath demon consumes anger, etc. Since they don't eat, there is no need for a toilet. The same goes for drinking. They are able to eat, but it is not needed for them. Getting you aroused and eating the emotion is like a late-night taco run for a lust demon."

She walks you through the process of drawing the ward on the floor, using a large bottle of ink and a fingertip. The symbols, while strange, are not too complex. As you complete the final symbol, it glows brightly along with the ink on your fingertip. Over a few seconds, it fades to a dull green, and the ink on your finger disappears completely.

"Now," she says, "this ward will prevent the demon from being able to harm you. They will not be able to cause you physical pain. However, they are still fully capable of lying, tricking you, angering you, insulting you, etc. Be prepared for that. They are also prevented from directly damaging or touching the ward or the summoning circle you will be drawing next. Again, though, they can trick you or try to indirectly cause you to do it. The ward itself is very fragile. A single smudge is all it takes to deactivate it. Be exceedingly careful about that."

"So, let's get started on the summoning circle. By the way, before you complete that, you will need to let me out of the room. The ward protects you, and only you. Once you have summoned a demon, it is not safe to bring anyone else in here, either demon or human. I will guide you until you are ready to draw the final symbol." You nod.

"Okay, this is where things get interesting. First, draw a circle like the diagram here." After you have drawn it, she says, "Very good. Next is the symbol for the type of demon you will be summoning. I have been told by the council to have you summon a lust demon."

"Oh, uh, okay. What are they like? Do they try to seduce you or something?"

"Lust demons are pretty basic, actually. They feed off of human lust in the same way that you eat food. They can actually starve if they don't get enough of it, but the more they get, the more powerful they become. Their abilities are generally limited to body reshaping, either their own or others."

"Am I supposed to try to resist being attracted to it?"

"Actually, attraction is encouraged. But don't lose sight of what is going on. You can feed them lust, but be sure not to let them manipulate you. Normally you would have spent weeks or months training for this, but we are actually quite short on summoners."

You mull that over for a moment, then nod and examine the symbol. It is rather simple, yet still looks oddly suggestive. You then start carefully drawing it out on the floor. It takes a little time, but you finish copying it with Terra's supervision. This is followed by the remaining symbols, one by one. Eventually, you stand up, stretch, and admire your handiwork. There is one line left on the last symbol.

"Okay, time to let me out. Now, the next section of your book explains everything you need to know. But if you have any questions at all, as long as the demon is safely restrained, you can come and ask myself or any of our brothers and sisters." She demonstrates to you that she is unable to open the door, even pulling back with all her strength. You walk over and let her out. The door feels heavy, but there is no resistance otherwise.

Now alone, you decide to check the book before drawing that last line. It is less a set of instructions and more a set of guidelines:

- The demon feeds on your lust and gains power from it.
- The more lust you feed it, the more it can reshape itself.
- The demon can reshape you as well, though doing so requires more lust.
- It wants you to be attracted to it, and is generally very open-minded about changes.
- They are low-ranking demons back home, so kind treatment goes a long way.

And so, with a bit of rushed instruction and five bullet points, you complete the final symbol.

Nothing.

You flip back to the summoning circle reference, comparing it to what you drew. Everything seems to be matching up. You are struggling a bit to read the symbols, though. Was it always this dark in here?

Suddenly, a blinding flash from the center of the circle startles you, causing you to drop the book and step away. It is strange to look at, burning your eyes like staring at the Sun, only it appears to be pitch black. It slowly expands to fill the circle, stopping when it reaches the edges.

"H-hello?" You hear a voice coming through it, like someone speaking on the other side.

Thinking about another few bullet points that really should have been in that list, you reply, "Hello. Are, uh, you a demon?"

There is a sound like a distorted gasp. "You're a human? Are you summoning me?!" From the description Terra had given, you were expecting something a bit more sudden and forceful, like the demon appearing on the floor or suspended in midair.

"Yes, you are being summoned. Could you come through the portal-thing, please?" You see the edges of the portal starting to flicker back toward the center.

"Oh, okay! Hang on, let me grab my—no, there's no time! Okay, coming through!" With a single bound, a demon leaps up through the portal, standing with its hooves on the edges as the portal closes beneath them. After it closes, you are finally able to get a good look.

The demon stands at about five and a half feet, you would guess, and is covered in short, brown fur. They are also completely naked. Figuring that a lust demon wouldn't mind, your eyes drift from the large, curled goat horns, down the face, and down to their body. You first notice a good-sized pair of breasts, fully exposed. As you look down further, you see their body is fairly lean. Though between their legs, rather than seeing the pink slit of a pussy, you see the sheath of a cock and a pair of rather large balls.

"Sorry, I know you were probably hoping I would be stacked and hung and stuff. But I can be! I promise! And—"

"Oh, uh, brother." You suppose you should have been ready for that.

"Ah, see? This is why I ask," Tom writes your name down, then checks a calendar on the desk and writes today's date, "Brother it is!"

"So, uh, what exactly am I supposed to do here? Like I was assuming we were talking about things like shoveling the walk or painting walls. But after seeing, well..." you nod toward the door where Kletano had left, "I probably shouldn't assume anything."

He gives you a grin. "Well, let me tell you a bit about our work here. Let's take a walk." He rises from his chair and leads you to the same door Kletano had left through. In the back of your mind, you were expecting a torchlit corridor stretching down into darkness, distant roars, and magic words echoing up to you. Well, you were right about the corridor part, though it is lit with the kinds of lightbulbs you would see in any other building. As you walk, you pass another demon. This one is female and seems to be in a bit of a hurry carrying a mug of coffee. She and Tom exchange nods as you pass.

"New sister?"

"New brother, actually."

"My apologies! Welcome, new brother! Sorry, late for a meeting." This all seems oddly familiar, like what you might see at a typical office. What is going on here?

A few steps later, Tom leads you through a side-door and into a room. This is much more what you were expecting. An old woman in a pale gray robe is seated behind a small desk, with several shelves of books behind her. She looks at you, and then turns to Tom.

"Hello, Terra. A new brother has joined our order." Turning to you, he begins to explain, "So, let me tell you a bit about our order. As you have started to see firsthand, there are other planes of existence out there besides our own. In fact, there are a vast multitude of them, populated by an equally wide variety of creatures. Our mission here is to begin to establish diplomatic relations outside of our plane. We feel that it is better to reach out on our own, rather than wait to be contacted by the first one to take an interest in us."

"So, since those are most definitely demons, I'm thinking you chose Hell. Don't get me wrong, I've never been the religious type, but..."

"But why Hell?" Tom asks rhetorically. "Actually, Hell and Earth have a long and complicated history together. At times it has been peaceful, and at other times less so. We felt the best place to start was with a society we have some common history with. Another reason we were drawn to Hell was because their society is quite stable. While their system of government resembles ancient feudalism here, the overall structure has not changed in thousands of years."

"Also, the council chose Hell, and that was that," Terra chimes in, casting a glance at Tom. Something about her expression makes you uneasy.

"Ah yes, not everyone agrees with the council's decision, but I suppose time will tell. What we are doing now is something of an exchange program. We are summoning demons and helping them to integrate into our order. Your job will be to assist with this summoning and training process. I am sure it sounds a bit scary, but don't worry. Terra here will be training and supervising you." She gives you a confident nod.

This all sounds quite fascinating, but at the moment you have a more mundane concern. "So, um, what is the pay cycle here? See, my landlord is kicking me out in a few days."

"Oh," Terra replies, "that actually makes it easier. You see, we typically prefer summoners stay here at the temple. You are free to come and go, of course, but the nature of your duties make it far easier if you are on site. It sounds like that will not be a problem?" You shake your head. "Excellent. As for your things, let me show you to your room."

The three of you leave and continue further down the hallway, reaching an elevator that appears to have been installed much more recently. "Summoning section five," she says as you enter, and the elevator dings. You feel the elevator start to move quickly downward, before it comes to a stop and the door opens. This, you realize, is more like you expected. The walls are made of stone brick, and strange symbols cover the walls and ceiling. The corridor is lit by torches in wall sconces, and robed figures occasionally move from room to room.

"Yours is the first room on the left, so it should be easy to remember. Summoning section five, room one." She points to an unmarked stone brick beside the door. "Press your hand there."

You press your palm against it, finding it strangely warm. After you pull away, the brick starts to glow with another strange symbol. "There, the room is now keyed to you. This door will only open if you press your palm against it. Quite an effective doorlock, wouldn't you say?"

"So wait, does this mean I'm some kind of wizard?" The strangeness of everything is starting to sink in.

"You are no more a wizard than a programmer is a mage. The world is governed by certain rules. Through our. . . 'partnership' with Hell, we have gained access to new types of technology, which work in ways you are unfamiliar with."

You experimentally put your hand back against the stone, and the door opens smoothly inward. The room is about the size of a typical bedroom, and has a bed and writing desk inside. One thing you note is the lack of a power outlet. They must not have electricity down here. An hour ago, you would have thought that strange.

"You will be able to get moved in after you see the other room." She leads you out (it looks like the lock only works one way), and gestures to the room on the other side of the lock stone. "So, your right hand opened the door to the left. Now use your left hand. The same stone unlocks both doors. Since it is between the doors, use the hand closest to the stone to unlock the door you are standing in front of."

You press against it, and as the door opens you walk inside. This room looks far more like a dungeon. It is unfurnished, apart from a set of four shackles hanging from the ceiling, a sink, a floor drain, a table, and a single chair. "This room is where you will do the summoning. It is left unfurnished since each summoner tends to set things up differently. Unlike the other room, this room is keyed to you for both entering and exiting. This is done as a safety precaution, but we will talk more about that later."

The next few hours are a blur. You are shown the rest of the facilities, ranging from restrooms to summoning-ink storage. This is followed by Tom driving you to your house to collect your things (What possessions you have left fit in a suitcase.) The two of you talk the whole way, but it all goes in one ear and out the other. You come back to what is now your home as the Sun is rising, make your way to summoning section five, room one, and fall into bed. You don't even remember your head hitting the pillow before you are asleep.

You are awakened sometime later by a pleasant chiming sound. You are not sure where it is coming from, but as soon as you sit up in bed it stops. Unsure what else to do, you arrange the items from your suitcase in the room. The old photo goes on the desk, your spare clothing goes in the closet, and a few minutes later you are moved in. You come back to what is now your home as the Sun is rising, make your way to summoning section five, room one, and fall into bed. You don't even remember your head hitting the pillow before you are asleep.

You are awakened sometime later by a pleasant chiming sound. You are not sure where it is coming from, but as soon as you sit up in bed it stops. Unsure what else to do, you arrange the items from your suitcase in the room. The old photo goes on the desk, your spare clothing goes in the closet, and a few minutes later you are moved in. It still doesn't feel like home, but maybe that will change with time. You take a change of clothes and a towel, then head to the shower.

After your shower, you are finally feeling more like yourself. Fifteen minutes to just process everything that has been happening made a big difference. You also had a chance to look at a clock, and realized it was evening again. You had slept through the day, but that meant surprisingly little with most things beneath the surface. You make your way to Terra's office, assuming this should be her shift again. Sure enough, you find her there. Sitting on the desk are a robe and a thin, leather-bound book. "Ah, welcome back. Did you sleep well?" You nod in reply. "Excellent, you looked pretty glazed over at the end of last night. So, excited for your first summon?"

"Movies often get things wrong, but that is one thing they are right about. Here," she gestures to the book and robe, "these are for you." She gives you a moment to put the robe on over your clothes. For as hot as it looks, you find it surprisingly comfortable. "Now, let's go to your summoning room and get started. The process takes a while and must be done carefully, but it is not complicated." The two of you walk together down to your summoning room. It still looks just as uninviting as it had the night before. Still, you open your book and start looking at it. Inside is a large collection of symbols, diagrams, and instructions.

"Now, there are two main things that we will need to do, and they must be done in this order. First, we will be making a ward. And second, we will be making a summoning circle. Now, the rooms themselves have a very powerful ward on them that prevents demons from perceiving anything outside of these walls. Once they have been properly trained, you can allow them out. Any questions so far?"

"So this room looks really uncomfortable, especially with the shackles and stuff. From what Tom was saying, shouldn't the room be setup to be more welcoming first?"

Terra lets out a long sigh. "So, when a demon arrives, we never know who we are going to get. Some are easy to work with, and others are definitely not. Some are immediately hostile. This room is here to contain them until they have been prepared to work with us. Brother Tom has never seen a demon who hasn't been fully prepared yet, so his head is a bit in the clouds when it comes to the whole process." Something about her phrasing again makes you feel uneasy, but since she is the expert here, you decide to follow her lead.

"Wait, so the demon is locked in here, right?" Terra nods. "Shouldn't there be some sort of toilet or something in here for them? Like I get that a bed can be added, but I don't see any sort of plumbing in here aside from the sink and that drain."

"Oh, right. So demons generally don't need to eat, though there are some exceptions. For example, a lust demon feeds on lust, a wrath demon consumes anger, etc. Since they don't eat, there is no need for a toilet. The same goes for drinking. They are able to eat, but it is not needed for them. Getting you aroused and eating the emotion is like a late-night taco run for a lust demon."

She walks you through the process of drawing the ward on the floor, using a large bottle of ink and a fingertip. The symbols, while strange, are not too complex. As you complete the final symbol, it glows brightly along with the ink on your fingertip. Over a few seconds, it fades to a dull green, and the ink on your finger disappears completely.

"Now," she says, "this ward will prevent the demon from being able to harm you. They will not be able to cause you physical pain. However, they are still fully capable of lying, tricking you, angering you, insulting you, etc. Be prepared for that. They are also prevented from directly damaging or touching the ward or the summoning circle you will be drawing next. Again, though, they can trick you or try to indirectly cause you to do it. The ward itself is very fragile. A single smudge is all it takes to deactivate it. Be exceedingly careful about that."

"So, let's get started on the summoning circle. By the way, before you complete that, you will need to let me out of the room. The ward protects you, and only you. Once you have summoned a demon, it is not safe to bring anyone else in here, either demon or human. I will guide you until you are ready to draw the final symbol." You nod.

"Okay, this is where things get interesting. First, draw a circle like the diagram here." After you have drawn it, she says, "Very good. Next is the symbol for the type of demon you will be summoning. I have been told by the council to have you summon a lust demon."

"Oh, uh, okay. What are they like? Do they try to seduce you or something?"

"Lust demons are pretty basic, actually. They feed off of human lust in the same way that you eat food. They can actually starve if they don't get enough of it, but the more they get, the more powerful they become. Their abilities are generally limited to body reshaping, either their own or others."

"Am I supposed to try to resist being attracted to it?"

"Actually, attraction is encouraged. But don't lose sight of what is going on. You can feed them lust, but be sure not to let them manipulate you. Normally you would have spent weeks or months training for this, but we are actually quite short on summoners."

You mull that over for a moment, then nod and examine the symbol. It is rather simple, yet still looks oddly suggestive. You then start carefully drawing it out on the floor. It takes a little time, but you finish copying it with Terra's supervision. This is followed by the remaining symbols, one by one. Eventually, you stand up, stretch, and admire your handiwork. There is one line left on the last symbol.

"Okay, time to let me out. Now, the next section of your book explains everything you need to know. But if you have any questions at all, as long as the demon is safely restrained, you can come and ask myself or any of our brothers and sisters." She demonstrates to you that she is unable to open the door, even pulling back with all her strength. You walk over and let her out.

The door feels heavy, but there is no resistance otherwise.

Now alone, you decide to check the book before drawing that last line. It is less a set of instructions and more a set of guidelines:

- The demon feeds on your lust and gains power from it.
- The more lust you feed it, the more it can reshape itself.
- The demon can reshape you as well, though doing so requires more lust.
- It wants you to be attracted to it, and is generally very open-minded about changes.
- They are low-ranking demons back home, so kind treatment goes a long way.

And so, with a bit of rushed instruction and five bullet points, you complete the final symbol.

Nothing.

You flip back to the summoning circle reference, comparing it to what you drew. Everything seems to be matching up. You are struggling a bit to read the symbols, though. Was it always this dark in here?

Suddenly, a blinding flash from the center of the circle startles you, causing you to drop the book and step away. It is strange to look at, burning your eyes like staring at the Sun, only it appears to be pitch black. It slowly expands to fill the circle, stopping when it reaches the edges.

"H-hello?" You hear a voice coming through it, like someone speaking on the other side.

Thinking about another few bullet points that really should have been in that list, you reply, "Hello. Are, uh, you a demon?"

There is a sound like a distorted gasp. "You're a human? Are you summoning me?!" From the description Terra had given, you were expecting something a bit more sudden and forceful, like the demon appearing on the floor or suspended in midair.

"Yes, you are being summoned. Could you come through the portal-thing, please?" You see the edges of the portal starting to flicker back toward the center.

"Oh, okay! Hang on, let me grab my—no, there's no time! Okay, coming through!" With a single bound, a demon leaps up through the portal, standing with its hooves on the edges as the portal closes beneath them. After it closes, you are finally able to get a good look.

The demon stands at about five and a half feet, you would guess, and is covered in short, brown fur. They are also completely naked. Figuring that a lust demon wouldn't mind, your eyes drift from the large, curled goat horns, down the face, and down to their body. You first notice a good-sized pair of breasts, fully exposed. As you look down further, you see their body is fairly lean. Though between their legs, rather than seeing the pink slit of a pussy, you see the sheath of a cock and a pair of rather large balls.

"Sorry, I know you were probably hoping I would be stacked and hung and stuff. But I can be! I promise! And—"

"Oh, uh, just sibling please." You suppose you should have been ready for that.

"Ah, see? This is why I ask," Tom writes your name down, then checks a calendar on the desk and writes today's date, "Sibling it is!"

"So, uh, what exactly am I supposed to do here? Like I was assuming we were talking about things like shoveling the walk or painting walls. But after seeing, well..." you nod toward the door where Kletano had left, "I probably shouldn't assume anything."

He gives you a grin. "Well, let me tell you a bit about our work here. Let's take a walk." He rises from his chair and leads you to the same door Kletano had left through. In the back of your mind, you were expecting a torchlit corridor stretching down into darkness, distant roars, and magic words echoing up to you. Well, you were right about the corridor part, though it is lit with the kinds of lightbulbs you would see in any other building. As you walk, you pass another demon. This one is female and seems to be in a bit of a hurry carrying a mug of coffee. She and Tom exchange nods as you pass.

"New brother?"

"New sibling, actually."

"My apologies! Welcome, new sibling! Sorry, late for a meeting." This all seems oddly familiar, like what you might see at a typical office. What is going on here?

A few steps later, Tom leads you through a side-door and into a room. This is much more what you were expecting. An old woman in a pale gray robe is seated behind a small desk, with several shelves of books behind her. She looks at you, and then turns to Tom.

"Hello, Terra. A new sibling has joined our order." Turning to you, he begins to explain, "So, let me tell you a bit about our order. As you have started to see firsthand, there are other planes of existence out there besides our own. In fact, there are a vast multitude of them, populated by an equally wide variety of creatures. Our mission here is to begin to establish diplomatic relations outside of our plane. We feel that it is better to reach out on our own, rather than wait to be contacted by the first one to take an interest in us."

"So, since those are most definitely demons, I'm thinking you chose Hell. Don't get me wrong, I've never been the religious type, but..."

"But why Hell?" Tom asks rhetorically. "Actually, Hell and Earth have a long and complicated history together. At times it has been peaceful, and at other times less so. We felt the best place to start was with a society we have some common history with. Another reason we were drawn to Hell was because their society is quite stable. While their system of government resembles ancient feudalism here, the overall structure has not changed in thousands of years."

"Also, the council chose Hell, and that was that," Terra chimes in, casting a glance at Tom. Something about her expression makes you uneasy.

"Ah yes, not everyone agrees with the council's decision, but I suppose time will tell. What we are doing now is something of an exchange program. We are summoning demons and helping them to integrate into our order. Your job will be to assist with this summoning and training process. I am sure it sounds a bit scary, but don't worry. Terra here will be training and supervising you." She gives you a confident nod.

This all sounds quite fascinating, but at the moment you have a more mundane concern. "So, um, what is the pay cycle here? See, my landlord is kicking me out in a few days."

"Oh," Terra replies, "that actually makes it easier. You see, we typically prefer summoners stay here at the temple. You are free to come and go, of course, but the nature of your duties make it far easier if you are on site. It sounds like that will not be a problem?" You shake your head. "Excellent. As for your things, let me show you to your room."

The three of you leave and continue further down the hallway, reaching an elevator that appears to have been installed much more recently. "Summoning section five," she says as you enter, and the elevator dings. You feel the elevator start to move quickly downward, before it comes to a stop and the door opens. This, you realize, is more like you expected. The walls are made of stone brick, and strange symbols cover the walls and ceiling. The corridor is lit by torches in wall sconces, and robed figures occasionally move from room to room.

"Yours is the first room on the left, so it should be easy to remember. Summoning section five, room one." She points to an unmarked stone brick beside the door. "Press your hand there."

You press your palm against it, finding it strangely warm. After you pull away, the brick starts to glow with another strange symbol. "There, the room is now keyed to you. This door will only open if you press your palm against it. Quite an effective doorlock, wouldn't you say?"

"So wait, does this mean I'm some kind of wizard?" The strangeness of everything is starting to sink in.

"You are no more a wizard than a programmer is a mage. The world is governed by certain rules. Through our... 'partnership' with Hell, we have gained access to new types of technology, which work in ways you are unfamiliar with."

You experimentally put your hand back against the stone, and the door opens smoothly inward. The room is about the size of a typical bedroom, and has a bed and writing desk inside. One thing you note is the lack of a power outlet. They must not have electricity down here. An hour ago, you would have thought that strange.

"You will be able to get moved in after you see the other room." She leads you out (it looks like the lock only works one way), and gestures to the room on the other side of the lock stone. "So, your right hand opened the door to the left. Now use your left hand. The same stone unlocks both doors. Since it is between the doors, use the hand closest to the stone to unlock the door you are standing in front of."

You press against it, and as the door opens you walk inside. This room looks far more like a dungeon. It is unfurnished, apart from a set of four shackles hanging from the ceiling, a sink, a floor drain, a table, and a single chair. "This room is where you will do the summoning. It is left unfurnished since each summoner tends to set things up differently. Unlike the other room, this room is keyed to you for both entering and exiting. This is done as a safety precaution, but we will talk more about that later."

The next few hours are a blur. You are shown the rest of the facilities, ranging from restrooms to summoning-ink storage. This is followed by Tom driving you to your house to collect your things (What possessions you have left fit in a suitcase.) The two of you talk the whole way, but it all goes in one ear and out the other. You come back to what is now your home as the Sun is rising, make your way to summoning section five, room one, and fall into bed. You don't even remember your head hitting the pillow before you are asleep.

This is followed by Tom driving you to your house to collect your things (What possessions you have left fit in a suitcase.) The two of you talk the whole way, but it all goes in one ear and out the other. You come back to what is now your home as the Sun is rising, make your way to summoning section five, room one, and fall into bed. You don't even remember your head hitting the pillow before you are asleep.

You are awakened sometime later by a pleasant chiming sound. You are not sure where it is coming from, but as soon as you sit up in bed it stops. Unsure what else to do, you arrange the items from your suitcase in the room. The old photo goes on the desk, your spare clothing goes in the closet, and a few minutes later you are moved in. It still doesn't feel like home, but maybe that will change with time. You take a change of clothes and a towel, then head to the shower.

After your shower, you are finally feeling more like yourself. Fifteen minutes to just process everything that has been happening made a big difference. You also had a chance to look at a clock, and realized it was evening again. You had slept through the day, but that meant surprisingly little with most things beneath the surface. You make your way to Terra's office, assuming this should be her shift again. Sure enough, you find her there. Sitting on the desk are a robe and a thin, leather-bound book. "Ah, welcome back. Did you sleep well?" You nod in reply. "Excellent, you looked pretty glazed over at the end of last night. So, excited for your first summon?"

"Yeah. And more than a bit scared. I've seen enough movies to know I don't want to do this wrong."

"Movies often get things wrong, but that is one thing they are right about. Here," she gestures to the book and robe, "these are for you." She gives you a moment to put the robe on over your clothes. For as hot as it looks, you find it surprisingly comfortable. "Now, let's go to your summoning room and get started. The process takes a while and must be done carefully, but it is not complicated." The two of you walk together down to your summoning room. It still looks just as uninviting as it had the night before. Still, you open your book and start looking at it. Inside is a large collection of symbols, diagrams, and instructions.

"Now, there are two main things that we will need to do, and they must be done in this order. First, we will be making a ward. And second, we will be making a summoning circle. Now, the rooms themselves have a very powerful ward on them that prevents demons from perceiving anything outside of these walls. Once they have been properly trained, you can allow them out. Any questions so far?"

"So this room looks really uncomfortable, especially with the shackles and stuff. From what Tom was saying, shouldn't the room be setup to be more welcoming first?"

Terra lets out a long sigh. "So, when a demon arrives, we never know who we are going to get. Some are easy to work with, and others are definitely not. Some are immediately hostile. This room is here to contain them until they have been prepared to work with us. Brother Tom has never seen a demon who hasn't been fully prepared yet, so his head is a bit in the clouds when it comes to the whole process." Something about her phrasing again makes you feel uneasy, but since she is the expert here, you decide to follow her lead.

"Wait, so the demon is locked in here, right?" Terra nods. "Shouldn't there be some sort of toilet or something in here for them? Like I get that a bed can be added, but I don't see any sort of plumbing in here aside from the sink and that drain."

"Oh, right. So demons generally don't need to eat, though there are some exceptions. For example, a lust demon feeds on lust, a wrath demon consumes anger, etc. Since they don't eat, there is no need for a toilet. The same goes for drinking. They are able to eat, but it is not needed for them. Getting you aroused and eating the emotion is like a late-night taco run for a lust demon."

She walks you through the process of drawing the ward on the floor, using a large bottle of ink and a fingertip. The symbols, while strange, are not too complex. As you complete the final symbol, it glows brightly along with the ink on your fingertip. Over a few seconds, it fades to a dull green, and the ink on your finger disappears completely.

"Now," she says, "this ward will prevent the demon from being able to harm you. They will not be able to cause you physical pain. However, they are still fully capable of lying, tricking you, angering you, insulting you, etc. Be prepared for that. They are also prevented from directly damaging or touching the ward or the summoning circle you will be drawing next. Again, though, they can trick you or try to indirectly cause you to do it. The ward itself is very fragile. A single smudge is all it takes to deactivate it. Be exceedingly careful about that."

"So, let's get started on the summoning circle. By the way, before you complete that, you will need to let me out of the room. The ward protects you, and only you. Once you have summoned a demon, it is not safe to bring anyone else in here, either demon or human. I will guide you until you are ready to draw the final symbol." You nod.

"Okay, this is where things get interesting. First, draw a circle like the diagram here." After you have drawn it, she says, "Very good. Next is the symbol for the type of demon you will be summoning. I have been told by the council to have you summon a lust demon."

"Oh, uh, okay. What are they like? Do they try to seduce you or something?"

"Lust demons are pretty basic, actually. They feed off of human lust in the same way that you eat food. They can actually starve if they don't get enough of it, but the more they get, the more powerful they become. Their abilities are generally limited to body reshaping, either their own or others."

"Am I supposed to try to resist being attracted to it?"

"Actually, attraction is encouraged. But don't lose sight of what is going on. You can feed them lust, but be sure not to let them manipulate you. Normally you would have spent weeks or months training for this, but we are actually quite short on summoners."

You mull that over for a moment, then nod and examine the symbol. It is rather simple, yet still looks oddly suggestive. You then start carefully drawing it out on the floor. It takes a little time, but you finish copying it with Terra's supervision. This is followed by the remaining symbols, one by one. Eventually, you stand up, stretch, and admire your handiwork. There is one line left on the last symbol.

"Okay, time to let me out. Now, the next section of your book explains everything you need to know. But if you have any questions at all, as long as the demon is safely restrained, you can come and ask myself or any of our brothers and sisters." She demonstrates to you that she is unable to open the door, even pulling back with all her strength. You walk over and let her out. The door feels heavy, but there is no resistance otherwise.

Now alone, you decide to check the book before drawing that last line. It is less a set of instructions and more a set of guidelines:

- The demon feeds on your lust and gains power from it.
- The more lust you feed it, the more it can reshape itself.
- The demon can reshape you as well, though doing so requires more lust.
- It wants you to be attracted to it, and is generally very open-minded about changes.
- They are low-ranking demons back home, so kind treatment goes a long way.

And so, with a bit of rushed instruction and five bullet points, you complete the final symbol.

Nothing.

You flip back to the summoning circle reference, comparing it to what you drew. Everything seems to be matching up. You are struggling a bit to read the symbols, though. Was it always this dark in here?

Suddenly, a blinding flash from the center of the circle startles you, causing you to drop the book and step away. It is strange to look at, burning your eyes like staring at the Sun, only it appears to be pitch black. It slowly expands to fill the circle, stopping when it reaches the edges.

"H-hello?" You hear a voice coming through it, like someone speaking on the other side.

Thinking about another few bullet points that really should have been in that list, you reply, "Hello. Are, uh, you a demon?"

There is a sound like a distorted gasp. "You're a human? Are you summoning me?!" From the description Terra had given, you were expecting something a bit more sudden and forceful, like the demon appearing on the floor or suspended in midair.

"Yes, you are being summoned. Could you come through the portal-thing, please?" You see the edges of the portal starting to flicker back toward the center.

"Oh, okay! Hang on, let me grab my—no, there's no time! Okay, coming through!" With a single bound, a demon leaps up through the portal, standing with its hooves on the edges as the portal closes beneath them. After it closes, you are finally able to get a good look.

The demon stands at about five and a half feet, you would guess, and is covered in short, brown fur. They are also completely naked. Figuring that a lust demon wouldn't mind, your eyes drift from the large, curled goat horns, down the face, and down to their body. You first notice a good-sized pair of breasts, fully exposed. As you look down further, you see their body is fairly lean. Though between their legs, rather than seeing the pink slit of a pussy, you see the sheath of a cock and a pair of rather large balls.

"Sorry, I know you were probably hoping I would be stacked and hung and stuff. But I can be! I promise! And—"

"You look amazing," you interrupt.

The demon stops, stunned. "I... I do?"

"Yes you do. You don't need to be stacked or hung to be attractive. You look great just the way you are."

The demon gives you a warm smile, then continues more calmly, "Thanks, human. Surely you have things you find more attractive than others, though. A 'type', if you will. I can become nearly anything, if I am fed enough lust. In fact, I can make changes to your body, too. I can make certain things bigger or smaller, change stuff around completely, or even turn you into a whole different species!"

The demon's eyes suddenly go wide, as a realization hits them. They stand tall and, suddenly formal, say, "Where are my manners? Summoner, I am Belrye. I will serve for as long as you have need of me." Going back to a more relaxed posture, they add, "It's easy to pronounce. 'Bel' like 'dinner bell', and 'rye' like 'rye bread'."

You introduce yourself in a similarly formal tone, figuring this must be another bullet point the book missed. Though you find it oddly reassuring that they don't seem any better prepared for this than you are. You stare at each other in awkward silence for a moment, fumbling for something more to say. Blurting out the first thing that comes to mind, you ask, "Wait, you speak English?"

"Oh, yes. The wall between planes isn't all that thick, which is why drawing some symbols on the floor let me come here. So we can sometimes see or hear things from here on Earth." The demon looks around, "We are on Earth right now, right?"

"We are," you reassure them, "It's just that there is a ward in place. Security and stuff, you know."

"Oh, okay! I had always heard about wards and things like that, but it's different actually experiencing it firsthand, you know? It feels kinda like being in a bubble that I can't see or feel through." You see a goatlike tail swish side to side, "So what's under the robe? You get to see me, so it's only fair, right?" They give you a playful wink, which does nothing to hide the needy tone in their voice. "I know humans can be really shy about that sort of thing, sometimes, but I'm guessing if you summoned a lust demon, you're probably not against getting naked..."

Well, it's just the two of you, and you guess you did sign up for this. You take off your clothing, tossing it onto the desk. "Wow, a real human..." they say to themself, licking their lips and making no attempt to be subtle. Maybe Terra's metaphor about going to get tacos wasn't far off, after all. From the visibly hardening nipples and the cock-tip emerging from its sheath, your companion seems to enjoy what they are seeing.

Belrye looks like they are trying to resist immediately leaping onto you, with their hands instead giving their breasts a firm squeeze. Suddenly you notice something. "Wait, how many fingers do you have?"

They pause, confused, then hold up their hands. Sure enough, each has three fingers and a thumb. "I've got the usual four. What do you—" They look down at your hands, "Oh! You know, suddenly a whole lot of things make more sense!"

"What do you mean?"

"Well, your counting system. Like how you have digits for 'eight' and 'nine'. For us," they slowly count on their fingers, "it goes five, six, seven..." They then hold one finger up on one hand and none on the other, like you would do to indicate the "ten's" position, "And that's eight."

You suppose this is just the first of many such conversations the two of you will be having, as you get to know each other. Are you supposed to get to know them? Is that what is supposed to happen? Are you supposed to be teaching them something, or what is going on?

"So, what happens now? The instructions I was given are pretty vague, ... mister? ... miss?"

"Oh, right—your language gets weird about that stuff. You can call me either one. The lines back on Hell are so blurry that we don't really think of ourselves as having a specific gender, if I'm being completely honest. Sure, there are body parts someone may be more into than others, but as far as what to call myself... I mean, I have boobs but no pussy, and I have a dick. Any of those things could be different tomorrow. I dunno, what would you like to call me?"

"I know humans can be really shy about that sort of thing, sometimes, but I'm guessing if you summoned a lust demon, you're probably not against getting naked..."

Well, it's just the two of you, and you guess you did sign up for this. You take off your clothing, tossing it onto the desk. "Wow, a real human..." they say to themself, licking their lips and making no attempt to be subtle. Maybe Terra's metaphor about going to get tacos wasn't far off, after all. From the visibly hardening nipples and the cock-tip emerging from its sheath, your companion seems to enjoy what they are seeing.

Belrye looks like they are trying to resist immediately leaping onto you, with their hands instead giving their breasts a firm squeeze. Suddenly you notice something. "Wait, how many fingers do you have?"

They pause, confused, then hold up their hands. Sure enough, each has three fingers and a thumb. "I've got the usual four. What do you—" They look down at your hands, "Oh! You know, suddenly a whole lot of things make more sense!"

"What do you mean?"

"Well, your counting system. Like how you have digits for 'eight' and 'nine'. For us," they slowly count on their fingers, "it goes five, six, seven..." They then hold one finger up on one hand and none on the other, like you would do to indicate the "ten's" position, "And that's eight."

You suppose this is just the first of many such conversations the two of you will be having, as you get to know each other. Are you supposed to get to know them? Is that what is supposed to happen? Are you supposed to be teaching them something, or what is going on?

"So, what happens now? The instructions I was given are pretty vague, ... mister? ... miss?"

"Oh, right—your language gets weird about that stuff. You can call me either one. The lines back on Hell are so blurry that we don't really think of ourselves as having a specific gender, if I'm being completely honest. Sure, there are body parts someone may be more into than others, but as far as what to call myself... I mean, I have boobs but no pussy, and I have a dick. Any of those things could be different tomorrow. I dunno, what would you like to call me?"

"We will work on that," you interrupt. The demon stops, then gives you a smile.

"Yeah, you're right. If you feed me enough lust, I can become pretty much anything you like! Well, not quite anything—I still have to be a demon. But I can change a lot! I can change you too, if you'd like. I can make certain things bigger or smaller, change stuff around completely, or even turn you into a whole different species!"

You give a nod. Having your own custom-made demon could be quite fun, and the idea of changing yourself has a certain appeal to it, too. This job certainly seems to come with some nice perks.

They take a moment to collect themself, then stand tall and, suddenly formal, say, "Where are my manners? Summoner, I am Belrye. I will serve for as long as you have need of me." Going back to a more relaxed posture, they add, "It's easy to pronounce. 'Bel' like 'dinner bell', and 'rye' like 'rye bread'."

You introduce yourself in a similarly formal tone, figuring this must be another bullet point the book missed. Though you find it oddly reassuring that they don't seem any better prepared for this than you are. You stare at each other in awkward silence for a moment, fumbling for something more to say. Blurting out the first thing that comes to mind, you ask, "Wait, you speak English?"

"Oh, yes. The wall between planes isn't all that thick, which is why drawing some symbols on the floor let me come here. So we can sometimes see or hear things from here on Earth." The demon looks around, "We are on Earth right now, right?"

"We are," you reassure them, "It's just that there is a ward in place. Security and stuff, you know."

"Oh, okay! I had always heard about wards and things like that, but it's different actually experiencing it firsthand, you know? It feels kinda like being in a bubble that I can't see or feel through." You see a goatlike tail swish side to side, "So what's under the robe? You get to see me, so it's only fair, right?" They give you a playful wink, which does nothing to hide the needy tone in their voice. "I know humans can be really shy about that sort of thing, sometimes, but I'm guessing if you summoned a lust demon, you're probably not against getting naked. . . "

"You look amazing," you interrupt.

The demon stops, stunned. "I... I do?"

"Yes you do. You don't need to be stacked or hung to be attractive. You look great just the way you are."

The demon gives you a warm smile, then continues more calmly, "Thanks, human. Surely you have things you find more attractive than others, though. A 'type', if you will. I can become nearly anything, if I am fed enough lust. In fact, I can make changes to your body, too. I can make certain things bigger or smaller, change stuff around completely, or even turn you into a whole different species!"

"Stacked, but I could do without hung," you interrupt. The demon stops, then gives you a smile.

"Oh? Much more interested in these, are we?" They gesture teasingly at their breasts. "If you feed me enough lust, I can become pretty much anything you like! Well, not quite anything—I still have to be a demon. But I can change a lot! I can change you too, if you'd like. I can make certain things bigger or smaller, change stuff around completely, or even turn you into a whole different species!"

You give a nod. Having your own custom-made demon could be quite fun, and the idea of changing yourself has a certain appeal to it, too. This job certainly seems to come with some nice perks.

They take a moment to collect themself, then stand tall and, suddenly formal, say, "Where are my manners? Summoner, I am Belrye. I will serve for as long as you have need of me." Going back to a more relaxed posture, they add, "It's easy to pronounce. 'Bel' like 'dinner bell', and 'rye' like 'rye bread'."

You introduce yourself in a similarly formal tone, figuring this must be another bullet point the book missed. Though you find it oddly reassuring that they don't seem any better prepared for this than you are. You stare at each other in awkward silence for a moment, fumbling for something more to say. Blurting out the first thing that comes to mind, you ask, "Wait, you speak English?"

"Oh, yes. The wall between planes isn't all that thick, which is why drawing some symbols on the floor let me come here. So we can sometimes see or hear things from here on Earth." The demon looks around, "We are on Earth right now, right?"

"We are," you reassure them, "It's just that there is a ward in place. Security and stuff, you know."

"Oh, okay! I had always heard about wards and things like that, but it's different actually experiencing it firsthand, you know? It feels kinda like being in a bubble that I can't see or feel through." You see a goatlike tail swish side to side, "So what's under the robe? You get to see me, so it's only fair, right?" They give you a playful wink, which does nothing to hide the needy tone in their voice. "I know humans can be really shy about that sort of thing, sometimes, but I'm guessing if you summoned a lust demon, you're probably not against getting naked. . . "

Well, it's just the two of you, and you guess you did sign up for this. You take off your clothing, tossing it onto the desk. "Wow, a real human. . . " they say to themself, licking their lips and making no attempt to be subtle. Maybe Terra's metaphor about going to get tacos wasn't far off, after all. From the visibly hardening nipples and the cock-tip emerging from its sheath, your companion seems to enjoy what they are seeing.

Belrye looks like they are trying to resist immediately leaping onto you, with their hands instead firmly grasping their breasts. Suddenly, you notice something. "Wait, how many fingers do you have?"

They pause, confused, then hold up their hands. Sure enough, each has three fingers and a thumb. "I've got the usual four. What do you—" They look down at your hands, "'Oh! You know, suddenly a whole lot of things make more sense!"

"What do you mean?"

"Well, your counting system. Like how you have digits for 'eight' and 'nine'. For us," they slowly count on their fingers, "it goes five, six, seven..." They then hold one finger up on one hand and none on the other, like you would do to indicate the "ten's" position, "And that's eight."

You suppose this is just the first of many such conversations the two of you will be having, as you get to know each other. Are you supposed to get to know them? Is that what is supposed to happen? Are you supposed to be teaching them something, or what is going on?

"So, what happens now? The instructions I was given are pretty vague, ... mister? ... miss?"

"Oh, right—your language gets weird about that stuff. You can call me either one. The lines back on Hell are so blurry that we really don't think of ourselves as having a specific gender, if I'm being completely honest. Sure, there are body parts someone may be more into than others, but as far as what to call myself... I mean, I have boobs but no pussy, and I have a dick. Any of those things could be different tomorrow. I dunno, what would you like to call me?"

"You look amazing," you interrupt.

The demon stops, stunned. "I... I do?"

"Yes you do. You don't need to be stacked or hung to be attractive. You look great just the way you are."

The demon gives you a warm smile, then continues more calmly, "Thanks, human. Surely you have things you find more attractive than others, though. A 'type', if you will. Well, it's just the two of you, and you guess you did sign up for this. You take off your clothing, tossing it onto the desk. "Wow, a real human. . . " they say to themself, licking their lips and making no attempt to be subtle. Maybe Terra's metaphor about going to get tacos wasn't far off, after all. From the visibly hardening nipples and the cock-tip emerging from its sheath, your companion seems to enjoy what they are seeing.

Belrye looks like they are trying to resist immediately leaping onto you, with their hands instead giving their breasts a firm squeeze. Suddenly you notice something. "Wait, how many fingers do you have?"

They pause, confused, then hold up thier hands. Sure enough, each has three fingers and a thumb. "I've got the usual four. What do you—" They look down at your hands, "Oh! You know, suddenly a whole lot of things make more sense!"

"What do you mean?"

"Well, your counting system. Like how you have digits for 'eight' and 'nine'. For us," they slowly count on their fingers, "it goes five, six, seven..." They then hold one finger up on one hand and none on the other, like you would do to indicate the "ten's" position, "And that's eight."

You suppose this is just the first of many such conversations the two of you will be having, as you get to know each other. Are you supposed to get to know them? Is that what is supposed to happen? Are you supposed to be teaching them something, or what is going on?

"So, what happens now? The instructions I was given are pretty vague, ... mister? ... miss?"

"Oh, right—your language gets weird about that stuff. You can call me either one. The lines back on Hell are so blurry that we really don't think of ourselves as having a specific gender, if I'm being completely honest. Sure, there are body parts someone may be more into than others, but as far as what to call myself... I mean, I have boobs but no pussy, and I have a dick. Any of those things could be different tomorrow. I dunno, what would you like to call me?"

"Hung, but I could do without stacked," you interrupt. The demon stops, then gives you a smile.

"Oh? Much more interested in this, are we?" They gesture teasingly down at their sheath and balls. "If you feed me enough lust, I can become pretty much anything you like! Well, not quite anything—I still have to be a demon. But I can change a lot! I can change you too, if you'd like. I can make certain things bigger or smaller, change stuff around completely, or even turn you into a whole different species!"

You give a nod. Having your own custom-made demon could be quite fun, and the idea of changing yourself has a certain appeal to it, too. This job certainly seems to come with some nice perks.

They take a moment to collect themself, then stand tall and, suddenly formal, say, "Where are my manners? Summoner, I am Belrye. I will serve for as long as you have need of me." Going back to a more relaxed posture, they add, "It's easy to pronounce. 'Bel' like 'dinner bell', and 'rye' like 'rye bread'."

You introduce yourself in a similarly formal tone, figuring this must be another bullet point the book missed. Though you find it oddly reassuring that they don't seem any better prepared for this than you are. You stare at each other in awkward silence for a moment, fumbling for something more to say. Blurting out the first thing that comes to mind, you ask, "Wait, you speak English?"

"Oh, yes. The wall between planes isn't all that thick, which is why drawing some symbols on the floor let me come here. So we can sometimes see or hear things from here on Earth." The demon looks around, "We are on Earth right now, right?"

"We are," you reassure them, "It's just that there is a ward in place. Security and stuff, you know."

"Oh, okay! I had always heard about wards and things like that, but it's different actually experiencing it firsthand, you know? It feels kinda like being in a bubble that I can't see or feel through." You see a goatlike tail swish side to side, "So what's under the robe? You get to see me, so it's only fair, right?" They give you a playful wink, which does nothing to hide the needy tone in their voice. "I know humans can be really shy about that sort of thing, sometimes, but I'm guessing if you summoned a lust demon, you're probably not against getting naked..."

"You look amazing," you interrupt.

The demon stops, stunned. "I... I do?"

"Yes you do. You don't need to be stacked or hung to be attractive. You look great just the way you are."

The demon gives you a warm smile, then continues more calmly, "Thanks, human. Surely you have things you find more attractive than others, though. A 'type', if you will. I can become nearly anything, if I am fed enough lust. In fact, I can make changes to your body, too. I can make certain things bigger or smaller, change stuff around completely, or even turn you into a whole different species!"

The demon's eyes suddenly go wide, as a realization hits them. They stand tall and, suddenly formal, say, "Where are my manners? Summoner, I am Belrye. You decide to use female pronouns for her. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. But I'm actually feeling a little bit of lust from you just the way I am. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

She gives you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

She takes the book and starts slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." She gets to the part with the summoning circle and cocks her head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." She shows the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." She continues to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, she is your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave her by herself. "Sure, I would like that."

Her tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demoness. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want her to look like? I mean, I know you said you like how I look now, but the sky is really the limit here. Like big breasts? I can have them. Into flat girls? Flat it is! Dick? Pussy? I can do it all."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

She gives you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, she sniffs the air and says, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." She gives you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as she wraps her arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in her soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," she says, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, she closes her eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but you would swear you feel genuine affection from the demoness. You wrap your arms around her. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch she almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then she looks down at your cock, standing proudly at attention. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you think I look great already, I assume that means you like me having a dick? Or would you rather I had a pussy instead?"

If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," she says, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, she closes her eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but it just feels so genuine. You wrap your arms around her. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch she almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then she looks down at your cock, standing proudly at attention. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you think I look great already, I assume that means you like me having a dick? Or would you rather I had a pussy instead?"

You decide to use male pronouns for him. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. But I'm actually feeling a little bit of lust from you just the way I am. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

He gives you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

He takes the book and starts slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." He gets to the part with the summoning circle and cocks his head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." He shows the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." He continues to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, he is your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave him by himself. "Sure, I would like that."

His tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demon. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want him to look like? I mean, you sounded interested in working on some changes, and the sky is really the limit here. Like big breasts? I can have them. Into flat guys? Flat it is! Dick? Pussy? I can do it all."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

He gives you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, he sniffs the air and says, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." He gives you a wink, "but I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as he wraps his arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in his soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. Seeing you lost in thought, he sniffs the air and says, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." He gives you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as he wraps his arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in his soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," he says, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, he closes his eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but you would swear you feel genuine affection from the demon. You wrap your arms around him. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch he almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then he looks down at your cock, standing proudly at attention. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you think I should be hung, I assume that means you like me having a dick? Or would you rather I had a pussy instead?"

You decide to use neutral pronouns for them. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. But I'm actually feeling a little bit of lust from you just the way I am. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

They give you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

They take the book and start slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." They get to the part with the summoning circle and cock their head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." They show the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." They continue to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, they are your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave them by themself. "Sure, I would like that."

Their tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demon. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want them to look like? I mean, I know you said you'd like me hung, but aren't into me being stacked. Into big-dicked partners? I can absolutely do that."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

They give you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, they sniff the air and say, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." They continue to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, they are your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave them by themself. "Sure, I would like that."

Their tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demon. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want them to look like? I mean, I know you said you'd like me stacked, but aren't into me being hung. Into big-boobed partners? I can absolutely do that."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

They give you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, they sniff the air and say, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." They give you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as they wrap their arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in their soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," they say, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, they close their eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but it just feels so genuine. You wrap your arms around them. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch they almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then they look down at your cock, standing proudly at attention. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. It sounds like you might like me having a pussy instead? Or perhaps you just like boys who aren't too big?"

You decide to use female pronouns for her. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. But I'm actually feeling a little bit of lust from you just the way I am. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

She gives you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

She takes the book and starts slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." She gets to the part with the summoning circle and cocks her head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." She shows the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. "Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

She gives you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

She takes the book and starts slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." She gets to the part with the summoning circle and cocks her head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." She shows the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." She continues to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, she is your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave her by herself. "Sure, I would like that."

Her tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demoness. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want her to look like? I mean, you sounded interested in working on some changes, and the sky is really the limit here. Like big breasts? I can have them. Into flat girls? Flat it is! Dick? Pussy? I can do it all."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

She gives you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, she sniffs the air and says, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." She gives you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as she wraps her arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in her soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going, but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," she says, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, she closes her eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but it just feels so genuine. You wrap your arms around her. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch she almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then she looks down at your pussy, which has started to get a little wet. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you think I look great already, I assume that means you like me having a dick? Or would you rather I had a pussy instead?"

Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," she says, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, she closes her eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but you would swear you feel genuine affection from the demoness. You wrap your arms around her. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch she almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then she looks down at your pussy, which has started to get a little wet. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you think I should be hung, I assume that means you like me having a dick? Or would you rather I had a pussy instead?"

You decide to use male pronouns for him. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. But I'm actually feeling a little bit of lust from you just the way I am. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

He gives you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

He takes the book and starts slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." He gets to the part with the summoning circle and cocks his head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." He shows the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." He continues to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, he is your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave him by himself. "Sure, I would like that."

His tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demon. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want him to look like? I mean, I know you said you'd like me hung, but aren't into me being stacked. Not into guys with boobs? I can absolutely do flat."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

He gives you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, he sniffs the air and says, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." He gives you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as he wraps his arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in his soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." He gives you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as he wraps his arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in his soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," he says, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, he closes his eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but it just feels so genuine. You wrap your arms around him. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch he almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then he looks down at your pussy, which has started to get a little wet. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you're into me being hung, I assume that means you'd rather I have a dick than a pussy?"

You decide to use neutral pronouns for them. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. But I'm actually feeling a little bit of lust from you just the way I am. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

They give you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

They take the book and start slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." They get to the part with the summoning circle and cock their head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." They show the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." They continue to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, they are your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave them by himself. "Sure, I would like that."

Their tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demon. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want them to look like? I mean, I know you said you'd like me hung, but aren't into me being stacked. Into big-boobed? I can absolutely do that."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

They give you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, they sniff the air and say, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, they are your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave them by themself. "Sure, I would like that."

Their tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demon. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want them to look like? I mean, I know you said you like how I look now, but the sky is really the limit here. Like big breasts? I can have them. Into flat partners? Flat it is! Dick? Pussy? I can do it all."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

They give you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, they sniff the air and say, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." They give you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as they wrap their arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in their soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," they say, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, they close their eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but you would swear you felt genuine affection from the demon. You wrap your arms around them. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch they almost seem to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then they looks down at your pussy, which has started to get a little wet. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you think I look great already, I assume that means you like me having a dick? Or would you rather I had a pussy instead?"

You decide to use female pronouns for her. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. But I'm actually feeling a little bit of lust from you just the way I am. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

She gives you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

She takes the book and starts slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." She gets to the part with the summoning circle and cocks her head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." She shows the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." She continues to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

I mean, you sounded interested in working on some changes, and the sky is really the limit here. Like big breasts? I can have them. Into flat girls? Flat it is! Dick? Pussy? I can do it all."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

She gives you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

She takes the book and starts slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." She gets to the part with the summoning circle and cocks her head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." She shows the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." She continues to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, she is your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave her by herself. "Sure, I would like that."

Her tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demoness. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want her to look like? I mean, I know you said you'd like me hung, but aren't into me being stacked. Into flat girls with dicks? I can absolutely do that."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

She gives you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, she sniffs the air and says, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." She gives you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as she wraps her arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in her soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," she says, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, she closes her eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but it just feels so genuine. You wrap your arms around her. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch she almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then she looks down at your pussy, which has started to get a little wet. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you think I should be hung, I assume that means you like me having a dick? Or would you rather I had a pussy instead?"

You decide to use male pronouns for him. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but it just feels so genuine. You wrap your arms around her. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch she almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then she looks down at your pussy, which has started to get a little wet. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you aren't into me being hung, I assume that means you'd rather I had a pussy? Or do you just want me have a cock, but just to not be huge?"

You decide to use male pronouns for him. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. But I'm actually feeling a little bit of lust from you just the way I am. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

He gives you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

He takes the book and starts slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." He gets to the part with the summoning circle and cocks his head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." He shows the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." He continues to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, he is your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave him by himself. "Sure, I would like that."

His tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demon. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want him to look like? I mean, I know you said you'd like me stacked, but aren't into me being hung. Into big-boobed guys? I can absolutely do that."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

He gives you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, he sniffs the air and says, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." He gives you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as he wraps his arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in his soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," he says, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, he closes his eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but it just feels so genuine. You wrap your arms around him. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as he wraps his arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in his soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," he says, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, he closes his eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but you would swear you feel genuine affection from the demon. You wrap your arms around him. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch he almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then he looks down at your cock, standing proudly at attention. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you think I look great already, I assume that means you like me having a dick? Or would you rather I had a pussy instead?"

You decide to use neutral pronouns for them. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. But I'm actually feeling a little bit of lust from you just the way I am. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

They give you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

They take the book and start slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." They get to the part with the summoning circle and cock their head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." They show the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." They continue to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, they are your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave them by themself. "Sure, I would like that."

Their tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demon. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want them to look like? I mean, I know you said you like how I look now, but the sky is really the limit here. Like big breasts? I can have them. Into flat partners? Flat it is! Dick? Pussy? I can do it all."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

They give you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, they sniff the air and say, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." They give you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as they wrap their arms around you in a tight embrace.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, they are your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave them by themself. "Sure, I would like that."

Their tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demon. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want them to look like? I mean, you sounded interested in working on some changes, and the sky is really the limit here. Like big breasts? I can have them. Into flat partners? Flat it is! Dick? Pussy? I can do it all."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

They give you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, they sniff the air and say, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." They give you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as they wrap their arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in their soft, furry arms. “I mean, it’s not how I pictured my first time going, but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we’re going to need a bed or something in here.”

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. “So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn’t send you away, does it?”

“So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn’t. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn’t send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?”

“Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I’m sure you’ve probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?”

“Actually, you are the first human I’ve ever touched. So remember how I said there weren’t many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I’ve lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can’t afford the real thing, it’s something to keep you fed.”

“You know,” you think out loud, “we’re really not so different from each other.”

“We’re really not,” they say, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, they close their eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but it just feels so genuine. You wrap your arms around them. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch they almost seem to melt into your gentle hug.

You’re not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn’t nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then they look down at your cock, standing proudly at attention. “So, let’s start with the basics, Summoner. If you think I look great already, I assume that means you like me having a dick? Or would you rather I had a pussy instead?”

You decide to use female pronouns for her. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. But I'm actually feeling a little bit of lust from you just the way I am. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

She gives you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

She takes the book and starts slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." She gets to the part with the summoning circle and cocks her head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." She shows the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." She continues to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

I mean, I know you said you'd like me hung, but aren't into me being stacked. Into flat girls with dicks? I can absolutely do that."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

She gives you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

She gives you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

She takes the book and starts slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." She gets to the part with the summoning circle and cocks her head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." She shows the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." She continues to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, she is your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave her by herself. "Sure, I would like that."

Her tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demoness. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want her to look like? I mean, I know you said you'd like me stacked, but aren't into me being hung. I can absolutely do that."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

She gives you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, she sniffs the air and says, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." She gives you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as she wraps her arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in her soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," she says, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, she closes her eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but it just feels so genuine. You wrap your arms around her. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch she almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then she looks down at your cock, standing proudly at attention. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. It sounds like you might like me having a pussy instead?"

You decide to use male pronouns for him. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. But I'm actually feeling a little bit of lust from you just the way I am. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but you would swear you feel genuine affection from the demoness. You wrap your arms around her. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch she almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then she looks down at your cock, standing proudly at attention. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you think I look great already, I assume that means you like me having a dick? Or would you rather I had a pussy instead?"

You decide to use male pronouns for him. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. But I'm actually feeling a little bit of lust from you just the way I am. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

He gives you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

He takes the book and starts slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." He gets to the part with the summoning circle and cocks his head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." He shows the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped our or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." He continues to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, he is your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave him by himself. "Sure, I would like that."

His tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demon. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want him to look like? I mean, I know you said you like how I look now, but the sky is really the limit here. Like big breasts? I can have them. Into flat chests? Flat it is! Dick? Pussy? I can do it all."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

He gives you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, he sniffs the air and says, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." He gives you a wink, "but I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as he wraps his arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in his soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," he says, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, he closes his eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but you would swear you feel genuine affection from the demon. You wrap your arms around him. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as he wraps his arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in his soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," he says, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, he closes his eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but it just feels so genuine. You wrap your arms around him. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch he almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then he looks down at your cock, standing proudly at attention. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you think I look great already, I assume that means you like me having a dick? Or would you rather I had a pussy instead?"

You decide to use neutral pronouns for them. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. But I'm actually feeling a little bit of lust from you just the way I am. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

They give you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

They take the book and start slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." They get to the part with the summoning circle and cock their head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." They show the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." They continue to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, they are your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave them by themself. "Sure, I would like that."

Their tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demon. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want them to look like? I mean, you sounded interested in working on some changes, and the sky is really the limit here. Like big breasts? I can have them. Into flat partners? Flat it is! Dick? Pussy? I can do it all."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

They give you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, they sniff the air and say, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, they are your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave them by themself. "Sure, I would like that."

Their tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demon. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want them to look like? I mean, I know you said you'd like me hung, but aren't into me being stacked. Into big-dicked partners? I can absolutely do that."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

They give you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, they sniff the air and say, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." He gives you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as they wrap their arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in their soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," they say, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, they close their eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but you would swear you feel genuine affection from the demon. You wrap your arms around them. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch they almost seem to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then they look down at your cock, standing proudly at attention. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you think I should be hung, I assume that means you like me having a dick? Or would you rather I had a pussy instead?"

You decide to use female pronouns for her. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. But I'm actually feeling a little bit of lust from you just the way I am. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

She gives you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

She takes the book and starts slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." She gets to the part with the summoning circle and cocks her head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." She shows the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." She continues to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

She takes the book and starts slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." She gets to the part with the summoning circle and cocks her head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." She shows the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." She continues to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, she is your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave her by herself. "Sure, I would like that."

Her tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demoness. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want her to look like? I mean, I know you said you like how I look now, but the sky is really the limit here. Like big breasts? I can have them. Into flat girls? Flat it is! Dick? Pussy? I can do it all."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

She gives you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, she sniffs the air and says, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." She gives you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as she wraps her arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in her soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," she says, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, she closes her eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but it just feels so genuine. You wrap your arms around her. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch she almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then she looks down at your pussy, which has started to get a little wet. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you think I look great already, I assume that means you like me having a dick? Or would you rather I had a pussy instead?"

You decide to use male pronouns for him. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. But I'm actually feeling a little bit of lust from you just the way I am. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

He gives you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch she almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then she looks down at your pussy, which has started to get a little wet. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you think I look great already, I assume that means you like me having a dick? Or would you rather I had a pussy instead?"

You decide to use male pronouns for him. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

He gives you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

He takes the book and starts slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." He gets to the part with the summoning circle and cocks his head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." He shows the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." He continues to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, he is your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave him by himself. "Sure, I would like that."

His tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demon. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want him to look like? I mean, you sounded interested in working on some changes, and the sky is really the limit here. Like big breasts? I can have them. Into flat chests? Flat it is! Dick? Pussy? I can do it all."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

He gives you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, he sniffs the air and says, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." He gives you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as he wraps his arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in his soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going, but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," he says, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, he closes his eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but it just feels so genuine. You wrap your arms around him. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch he almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in his soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," he says, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, he closes his eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but it just feels so genuine. You wrap your arms around him. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch he almost seems to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then he looks down at your pussy, which has started to get a little wet. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you think I should be hung, I assume that means you like me having a dick? Or would you rather I had a pussy instead?"

You decide to use neutral pronouns for them. "So... have you ever been on Earth before?"

"Nope, I never have. It's really hard, actually. See, we need lust to live, sorta like how humans need water. There aren't too many humans on Hell, so it is kinda hard to get what we need. I mean, if I could get more, I would probably be a bit more well-endowed. But I'm actually feeling a little bit of lust from you just the way I am. Oh, sorry I'm rambling! What about you? Have you ever summoned someone before?"

You shake your head, "I didn't even know you all existed until yesterday. This whole thing has been a lot to take in, and I haven't really had time to just sit and let it all sink in."

They give you a smile. "So a first-time summoner, summoning a first-time demon? Maybe we can help each other! I can help you with whatever you summoned me for, and you can feed me?"

"Funny thing about that. I was never actually told what I was summoning you for. Actually, everything beyond the actual summoning kinda got left out of my crash-course," you let out a laugh at the absurdity of the situation. "The closest thing I have to instructions is this book." You bend down and pick your book up off the floor, where you had dropped it when the portal opened. "Here, I guess it's probably okay for you to see this."

They take the book and start slowly flipping through it. "Okay, so I'm better at speaking English than reading it, but let's see..." They get to the part with the summoning circle and cock their head a bit to the side. "I mean, I guess that's one way to draw that? It's weird they would have you use a kth'tan instead of a jh'dornir, but it depends what you're trying to summon I suppose... Wait a minute, something's missing here." They show the book to you, "Look at these two pages. We're halfway through a sentence here, and then the next page starts a new section. It doesn't look like pages were ripped out or anything, but something is definitely missing here."

"Maybe a misprint?" you ask, "That would certainly explain a lot."

You take a look. "Looks like it skips about thirty pages or so."

"Right. So if it skips thirty pages by accident, the binding should feel loose or the cover should be too big. This doesn't feel or look like that. I think this was deliberately printed without those. I wonder if there is more that's missing..." They continue to read, and you find several more sections missing. In total, it looks like about half of the book isn't there.

"I don't get it, though. Why would they give me a book with parts missing?"

"That is a very good question. I suppose you could go ask, but maybe we could get to know each other a little first?"

You think for a moment. With how much of a rush everything has been, it would be good to relax for a bit. Besides, they are your guest, so it feels a bit rude to immediately walk out and leave them by themself. "Sure, I would like that."

Their tail wiggles happily. "So let's say you had the chance to get your very own, personalized lust demon. Y'know, hypothetically. What do you think you would want them to look like? I mean, I know you said you'd like me hung, but aren't into me being stacked. Not into partners with boobs? I can absolutely do flat."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

They give you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, they sniff the air and say, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or...?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." They give you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I...well...I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as they wrap their arms around you in a tight embrace.

I mean, I know you said you'd like me hung, but aren't into me being stacked. Into big-boobed? I can absolutely do that."

You stop to think a bit. "I mean, isn't it a bit wrong or cruel to make you change your body to fit what I am into?"

They give you a sweet smile. "I really like that you're concerned about me. But it is actually completely okay. We lust demons aren't generally picky about how we look. Like my identity comes from my soul, not what I see when I look in the mirror. No matter what my body looks like, I'm still Belrye. It just means I get to cum in different ways, depending on what parts I have."

Seeing you lost in thought, they sniff the air and say, "While you're thinking, I'm curious. Are you a virgin? Your lust has that really sweet smell."

"Wait, you can smell lust? Like is it a pheromone thing, or. . . ?"

"Hmm? Oh, not at all. Actually, 'smell' probably isn't the right word for it. It's a sense humans don't have. But we demons can feel the emotions of those around us. And we lust demons can tell when someone is horny. Don't be shy about it, though! Another part of being a lust demon is that you are pretty much always at least a little aroused. That's also why I led with asking what you want me to look like, rather than starting with your hobbies and stuff." They give you a wink, "But I think you're dodging the second question. Have you ever been laid before?"

"I. . . well. . . I haven't been, no. Nobody's ever been into me. And after getting shot down, stood up, ghosted, and all that over and over, I guess I just kinda gave up on it ever happ—gah!" You are suddenly half-tackled by Belrye, as they wrap their arms around you in a tight embrace.

"Oh no! Well, we're gonna change that, starting today! You're okay with your first time being with a demon, right?"

Somehow, in all of the craziness of the past couple days, you hadn't really thought about that part. But any doubts you might have were melting away in their soft, furry arms. "I mean, it's not how I pictured my first time going,

but after meeting you? I think it would be perfect. Though I think we're going to need a bed or something in here."

You look down at the floor, thinking about how to get furniture into the room. "So I know if the ward gets smudged or something, it means the protections go away. But what happens if the summoning circle gets smudged? It doesn't send you away, does it?"

"So the summoning circle is what keeps me here. Like right now, if I wanted to go home, I couldn't. You could kinda think of the summoning circle like a chain keeping me on this plane of existence. If the circle is damaged or erased, it breaks that chain. It doesn't send me away, but it means I can go back to Hell if I want. But once I go back, I would need to be re-summoned. If you actually wanted to force me back to Hell, that would require banishing. Does that all make sense?"

"Yeah, I think so. So, uh, how about you? The whole virgin-question, I mean. I'm sure you've probably done it a lot, being a lust demon and all?"

"Actually, you are the first human I've ever touched. So remember how I said there weren't many humans on Hell? Well, there are a lot of demons, and not many humans. Basically I've lived my whole life on artificial lust. It tastes genuinely awful, but when you can't afford the real thing, it's something to keep you fed."

"You know," you think out loud, "we're really not so different from each other."

"We're really not," they say, with a sweet smile. Suddenly, they close their eyes and you feel a pair of wet lips pressed against your own. The muzzle feels a bit strange, and the fur against your chin may take some getting used to, but it just feels so genuine. You wrap your arms around them. The fur feels so soft and warm, and at your touch they almost seem to melt into your gentle hug.

You're not sure how long you stay like that, but as your lips pull apart, you know it wasn't nearly long enough. Belrye is practically beaming up at you. Then they look down at your pussy, which has started to get a little wet. "So, let's start with the basics, Summoner. If you're into me being hung, I assume that means you'd rather I have a dick than a pussy?"

"I like you having a dick, if that's okay with you."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling she would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure she's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking her cock.

When she sees you, her eyes light up and she rises to her hooves. "Hello there, Summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

She stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give her a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," she replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

She opens her mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up her hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." She takes one careful step back, her hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, her voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With her bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at her tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of her breasts. She lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. She slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With her bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at her tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of her breasts. She lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. She slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I like you having a dick, if that's okay with you."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling he would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure he's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking his cock.

When he sees you, his eyes light up and he rises to his hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

He stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give her a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a

"I'd like that," he replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

He opens his mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up his hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." He takes one careful step back, his hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, his voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"I like you having a dick, if that's okay with you."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," they reply, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling they would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure they're safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking their cock.

When they see you, their eyes light up and they rise to their hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

They stand up and walk over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give them a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a

"I'd like that," they reply, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

They open their mouth to reply, but are interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up their hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." They take one careful step back, their hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, their voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With them bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at their tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of their breasts. They let out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. They slide closer and whisper in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"Absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," they reply, winking at you.

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure he's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking her cock.

When she sees you, her eyes light up and she rises to her hooves. "Hello there, Summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

She stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give her a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a

"I'd like that," she replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

She opens her mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up her hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." She takes one careful step back, her hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, her voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With her bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at her tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of her breasts. She lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. She slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"Well, if I'm being honest, I've always been a bit more into pussy. So I think I would like that best, if you don't mind."

"Absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling she would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal

He stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give him a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," he replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

He opens his mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up his hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." He takes one careful step back, his hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, his voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With him bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at his tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of his breasts. He lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. He slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"Well, if I'm being honest, I've always been a bit more into pussy. So I think I would like that best, if you don't mind."

"Absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling he would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure he's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking his cock.

When he sees you, his eyes light up and he rises to his hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

He stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With them bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at their tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of their breasts. They let out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. They slide closer and whisper in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"Well, if I'm being honest, I've always been a bit more into pussy. So I think I would like that best, if you don't mind."

"Absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," they reply, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling they would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure they're safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking their cock.

When they see you, their eyes light up and they rise to their hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

They stand up and walk over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give them a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a

"I'd like that," they reply, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

They open their mouth to reply, but are interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up their hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." They take one careful step back, their hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, their voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

"Well, if I'm being honest, I've always been a bit more into pussy. So I think I would like that best, if you don't mind."

"Oh? I'm a bit surprised, since you liked the idea of me being hung. Maybe you just didn't know that was an option? Either way, absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling she would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure she's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking her cock.

When she sees you, her eyes light up and she rises to her hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

She stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give her a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," she replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

She opens her mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up her hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." She takes one careful step back, her hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, her voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With her bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at her tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of her breasts. She lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. She slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure he's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking his cock.

When he sees you, his eyes light up and he rises to his hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

He stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give him a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," he replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

He opens his mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up his hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." He takes one careful step back, his hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, his voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With him bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at his tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of his breasts. He lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. He slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I think I'd like it to be your choice. I am perfectly happy, either way."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you. "I think I'm gonna go ahead and keep the dick. I kinda like having it, to be honest."

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling he would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

They stand up and walk over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give them a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," they reply, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

They open their mouth to reply, but are interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up their hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." They take one careful step back, their hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, their voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With them bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at their tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of their breasts. They let out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. They slide closer and whisper in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I think I'd like it to be your choice. I am perfectly happy, either way."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," they reply, winking at you. "I think I'm gonna go ahead and keep the dick. I kinda like having it, to be honest."

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling they would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure they're safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking their cock.

When they see you, their eyes light up and they rise to their hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, her voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With her bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at her tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of her breasts. She lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. She slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I think I'd like it to be your choice. I am perfectly happy, either way."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you. "I think I'm gonna go ahead and keep the dick. I kinda like having it, to be honest."

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling she would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure she's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking her cock.

When she sees you, her eyes light up and she rises to her hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

She stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give her a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," she replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

She opens her mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up her hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." She takes one careful step back, her hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, her voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

“Actually, why don’t you take charge?”	2831

"I think I'd like it to be your choice. I am perfectly happy, either way."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you. "I think I'm gonna go ahead and keep the dick. I kinda like having it, to be honest."

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling he would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure he's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking his cock.

When he sees you, his eyes light up and he rises to his hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

He stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give him a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," he replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

He opens his mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up his hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." He takes one careful step back, his hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, his voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With him bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at his tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of his breasts. He lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. He slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure they're safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking their cock.

When they see you, their eyes light up and they rise to their hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

They stand up and walk over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give them a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," they reply, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

They open their mouth to reply, but are interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up their hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." They take one careful step back, their hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, their voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With them bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at their tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of their breasts. They let out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. They slide closer and whisper in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I like you having a dick, if that's okay with you."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling she would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

She stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give her a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," she replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

She opens her mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up her hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." She takes one careful step back, her hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, her voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With her bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at her tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of her breasts. She lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. She slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I like you having a dick, if that's okay with you."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling he would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure he's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking his cock.

When he sees you, his eyes light up and he rises to his hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

He stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With him bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at his tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of his breasts. He lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. He slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I like you having a dick, if that's okay with you."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," they reply, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling they would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure they're safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking their cock.

When they see you, their eyes light up and they rise to their hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

They stand up and walk over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give them a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a

"I'd like that," they reply, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

They open their mouth to reply, but are interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up their hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." They take one careful step back, their hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, their voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling she would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure she's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking her cock.

When she sees you, her eyes light up and she rises to her hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

She stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give her a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a

"I'd like that," she replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

She opens her mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up her hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." She takes one careful step back, her hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, her voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With her bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at her tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of her breasts. She lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. She slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"Absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you.

Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure he's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking his cock.

When he sees you, his eyes light up and he rises to his hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

He stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give him a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," he replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

He opens his mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up his hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." He takes one careful step back, his hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, his voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With him bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at his tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of his breasts. He lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. He slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"Well, if I'm being honest, I've always been a bit more into pussy. So I think I would like that best, if you don't mind."

"Absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling he would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

"I'd like that," they reply, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

They open their mouth to reply, but are interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up their hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." They take one careful step back, their hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, their voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With them bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at their tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of their breasts. They let out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. They slide closer and whisper in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"Well, if I'm being honest, I've always been a bit more into pussy. So I think I would like that best, if you don't mind."

"Absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," they reply, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling they would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure they're safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking their cock.

When they see you, their eyes light up and they rise to their hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

They stand up and walk over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give them a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a

"I'd like that," they reply, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of her breasts. She lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. She slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"Well, if I'm being honest, I've always been a bit more into pussy. So I think I would like that best, if you don't mind."

"Oh? I'm a bit surprised, since you liked the idea of me being hung. Maybe you just didn't know that was an option? Either way, absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling she would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure she's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking her cock.

When she sees you, her eyes light up and she rises to her hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

She stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give her a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," she replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

She opens her mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up her hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." She takes one careful step back, her hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, her voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With her bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at her tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling he would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure he's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking his cock.

When he sees you, his eyes light up and he rises to his hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

He stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give him a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," he replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

He opens his mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up his hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." He takes one careful step back, his hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, his voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With him bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at his tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of his breasts. He lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. He slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I think I'd like it to be your choice. I am perfectly happy, either way."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you. "I think I'm gonna go ahead and keep the dick. I kinda like having it, to be honest."

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure they're safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking their cock.

When they see you, their eyes light up and they rise to their hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

They stand up and walk over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give them a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," they reply, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

They open their mouth to reply, but are interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up their hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." They take one careful step back, their hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, their voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With them bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at their tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of their breasts. They let out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. They slide closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I think I'd like it to be your choice. I am perfectly happy, either way."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," they reply, winking at you. "I think I'm gonna go ahead and keep the dick. I kinda like having it, to be honest."

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling they would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

She opens her mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up her hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." She takes one careful step back, her hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, her voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With her bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at her tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of her breasts. She lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. She slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I think I'd like it to be your choice. I am perfectly happy, either way."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you. "I think I'm gonna go ahead and keep the dick. I kinda like having it, to be honest."

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling she would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure she's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking her cock.

When she sees you, her eyes light up and she rises to her hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

She stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give her a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," she replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

She opens her mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of his breasts. He lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. He slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I think I'd like it to be your choice. I am perfectly happy, either way."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you. "I think I'm gonna go ahead and keep the dick. I kinda like having it, to be honest."

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling he would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure he's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking his cock.

When he sees you, his eyes light up and he rises to his hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

He stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give him a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," he replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

He opens his mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up his hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." He takes one careful step back, his hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, his voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With him bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at his tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling they would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure they're safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking their cock.

When they see you, their eyes light up and they rise to their hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

They stand up and walk over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give them a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," they reply, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

They open their mouth to reply, but are interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up their hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." They take one careful step back, their hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, their voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With them bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at their tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of their breasts. They let out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. They slide closer and whisper in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I like you having a dick, if that's okay with you."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure she's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking her cock.

When she sees you, her eyes light up and she rises to her hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

She stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give her a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," she replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

She opens her mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up her hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." She takes one careful step back, her hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, her voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With her bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at her tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of her breasts. She lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. She slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I like you having a dick, if that's okay with you."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling he would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

He opens his mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up his hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." He takes one careful step back, his hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, his voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With him bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at his tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of his breasts. He lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. He slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I like you having a dick, if that's okay with you."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," they reply, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling they would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure they're safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking their cock.

When they see you, their eyes light up and they rise to their hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

They stand up and walk over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give them a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a

"I'd like that," they reply, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

They open their mouth to reply, but are interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of their breasts. They let out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. They slide closer and whisper in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I like you having a dick, if that's okay with you."

"Absolutely! Of course, whatever you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling she would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure she's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking her cock.

When she sees you, her eyes light up and she rises to her hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

She stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give her a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a

"I'd like that," she replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

She opens her mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up her hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." She takes one careful step back, her hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, her voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With her bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at her tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

"Well, if I'm being honest, I've always been a bit more into pussy. So I think I would like that best, if you don't mind."

"Absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you.

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling he would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so…" He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure he's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking his cock.

When he sees you, his eyes light up and he rises to his hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

He stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give him a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," he replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

He opens his mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up his hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." He takes one careful step back, his hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, his voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With him bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at his tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of his breasts. He lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. He slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"Well, if I'm being honest, I've always been a bit more into pussy. So I think I would like that best, if you don't mind."

"Absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking their cock.

When they see you, their eyes light up and they rise to their hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

They stand up and walk over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give them a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a

"I'd like that," they reply, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

They open their mouth to reply, but are interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up their hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." They take one careful step back, their hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, their voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With them bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at their tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of their breasts. They let out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. They slide closer and whisper in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"Well, if I'm being honest, I've always been a bit more into pussy. So I think I would like that best, if you don't mind."

"Absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," they reply, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling they would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so…" He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure they're safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking their cock.

"I think I'd like it to be your choice. I am perfectly happy, either way."

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, her voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With her bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at her tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of her breasts. She lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. She slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"Well, if I'm being honest, I've always been a bit more into pussy. So I think I would like that best, if you don't mind."

"Oh? I'm a bit surprised, since you liked the idea of me being hung. Maybe you just didn't know that was an option? Either way, absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling she would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure she's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking her cock.

When she sees you, her eyes light up and she rises to her hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

She stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give her a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," she replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

She opens her mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up her hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." She takes one careful step back, her hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"I think I'd like it to be your choice. I am perfectly happy, either way."

“Actually, why don’t you take charge?”	0

"Well, if I'm being honest, I've always been a bit more into pussy. So I think I would like that best, if you don't mind."

"Oh? I'm a bit surprised, since you liked the idea of me being hung. Maybe you just didn't know that was an option? Either way, absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling he would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure he's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking his cock.

When he sees you, his eyes light up and he rises to his hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

He stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give him a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," he replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

He opens his mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up his hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." He takes one careful step back, his hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, his voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With him bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at his tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of his breasts. He lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. He slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I think I'd like it to be your choice. I am perfectly happy, either way."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you. "I think I'm gonna go ahead and keep the dick. I kinda like having it, to be honest."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure they're safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking their cock.

When they see you, their eyes light up and they rise to their hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

They stand up and walk over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give them a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," they reply, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

They open their mouth to reply, but are interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up their hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." They take one careful step back, their hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, their voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With them bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at their tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of their breasts. They let out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. They slide closer and whisper in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I think I'd like it to be your choice. I am perfectly happy, either way."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," they reply, winking at you. "I think I'm gonna go ahead and keep the dick. I kinda like having it, to be honest."

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling they would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"I'd like that," she replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

She opens her mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up her hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." She takes one careful step back, her hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, her voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With her bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at her tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of her breasts. She lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. She slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I think I'd like it to be your choice. I am perfectly happy, either way."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you. "I think I'm gonna go ahead and keep the dick. I kinda like having it, to be honest."

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling she would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure she's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking her cock.

When she sees you, her eyes light up and she rises to her hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

She stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give her a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of his breasts. He lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. He slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I think I'd like it to be your choice. I am perfectly happy, either way."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you. "I think I'm gonna go ahead and keep the dick. I kinda like having it, to be honest."

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling he would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure he's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking his cock.

When he sees you, his eyes light up and he rises to his hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

He stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give him a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," he replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

He opens his mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up his hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." He takes one careful step back, his hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, his voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With him bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at his tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling they would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure they're safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking their cock.

When they see you, their eyes light up and they rise to their hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

They stand up and walk over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give them a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," they reply, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

They open their mouth to reply, but are interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up their hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." They take one careful step back, their hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, their voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With them bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at their tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of their breasts. They let out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. They slide closer and whisper in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I like you having a dick, if that's okay with you."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure she's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking her cock.

When she sees you, her eyes light up and she rises to her hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

She stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give her a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," she replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

She opens her mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up her hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." She takes one careful step back, her hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, her voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With her bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at her tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of her breasts. She lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. She slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I like you having a dick, if that's okay with you."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling he would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up his hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." He takes one careful step back, his hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, his voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With him bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at his tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of his breasts. He lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. He slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I like you having a dick, if that's okay with you."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," they reply, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too. . . " You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling they would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so…" He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure they're safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking their cock.

When they see you, their eyes light up and they rise to their hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

They stand up and walk over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give them a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a

"I'd like that," they reply, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

They open their mouth to reply, but are interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. "I like you having a dick, if that's okay with you."

"Absolutely! Of course, whatever you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling she would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure she's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking her cock.

When she sees you, her eyes light up and she rises to her hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

She stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give her a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a

"I'd like that," she replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

She opens her mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up her hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." She takes one careful step back, her hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, her voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With her bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at her tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of her breasts. She lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. She slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"Absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you.

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling he would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so…" He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure he's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking his cock.

When he sees you, his eyes light up and he rises to his hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

He stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give him a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," he replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

He opens his mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up his hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." He takes one careful step back, his hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, his voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With him bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at his tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of his breasts. He lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. He slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"Well, if I'm being honest, I've always been a bit more into pussy. So I think I would like that best, if you don't mind."

"Absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." If you could, ah, make sure they're safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking their cock.

When they see you, their eyes light up and they rise to their hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

They stand up and walk over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give them a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," they reply, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

They open their mouth to reply, but are interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up their hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." They take one careful step back, their hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, their voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With them bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at their tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of their breasts. They let out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. They slide closer and whisper in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"Well, if I'm being honest, I've always been a bit more into pussy. So I think I would like that best, if you don't mind."

"Absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," they reply, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling they would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure they're safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking their cock.

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up her hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." She takes one careful step back, her hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, her voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With her bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at her tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of her breasts. She lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. She slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"Well, if I'm being honest, I've always been a bit more into pussy. So I think I would like that best, if you don't mind."

"Oh? I'm a bit surprised, since you liked the idea of me being hung. Maybe you just didn't know that was an option? Either way, absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," she replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling she would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure she's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking her cock.

When she sees you, her eyes light up and she rises to her hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

She stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give her a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," she replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

She opens her mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up her hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." She takes one careful step back, her hooves clicking on the stone.

"Well, if I'm being honest, I've always been a bit more into pussy. So I think I would like that best, if you don't mind."

"Oh? I'm a bit surprised, since you liked the idea of me being hung. Maybe you just didn't know that was an option? Either way, absolutely! Though I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. And I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you.

"I suppose that does bring us back to needing a bed or something," you say, wishing you didn't have to break the mood. From the sound of things, you should be able to go to the supply section. You had seen it on your whirlwind tour of the temple and are pretty sure you remember how to get there. After grudgingly getting dressed, you politely excuse yourself and let yourself out.

About halfway there, you suddenly stop in the hallway. Weren't you supposed to not let anyone else in the summoning room besides yourself? You picture Belrye trying to sleep curled up on the cold, stone floor, deciding that can't be how this is supposed to work. There must have been some mistake. A few minutes later, you are standing in the supply room, at the front desk.

"Hey, what can I get for ya?" Behind the counter stands a man who definitely looks like he moves heavy things for a living. Even under the robes, you can see that he is quite muscular. His thick handlebar mustache reminds you of a circus strongman, and you wonder what he might have been before joining the order.

"Well, I need furniture for a summoning room," you reply, "I assume I talk to you about that?"

"You betcha. You know, I get why they start you out with an empty room, but it would make things a whole lot easier if they gave you at least some basics to start out. So, what kinda demon are we looking at here?"

"Oh, uh, lust." You feel your face redden slightly, but the man behind the counter lets out a booming laugh.

"Come now, you're not the only one with a lust demon here. So you're definitely gonna want a comfy bed, because you're gonna be spending a lotta time in it. Maybe two sets of blankets, too..." You see him taking notes in a large book. It surprises you how nothing here seems to be done electronically. Maybe it is like the locks on your doors, and there is some sort of magic at work here.

"Now, we've got a few models of beds we can do. Are you looking for a fancy four-poster canopy bed, or something more utilitarian?"

"I kinda get the feeling he would be into a canopy bed, I think."

He looks up from the book. "Oh, wait. You mean you've already summoned one?"

"Yeah, is that bad? Terra had me summon one before she left."

"Well, the rules are that I'm not supposed to go into summoning rooms when a demon is already occupying them. They're supposed to have you deal with furnishings before the actual summoning. So technically I can't. But then again, it pains me to think of a demon not having a bed to sleep in or a pillow to rest their head on, so..." He makes a show of checking that you are alone, then loudly whispers "I'll make an exception." Going back to normal, he reads through his list. "So a canopy bed, two pillows, two sets of blankets. Are you going to want a second chair for the table that's in there?"

"Yes please. What does all of this cost, anyway?"

"Oh, it's all free for you. We have a budget for equipment and stuff, so it all just gets counted as summoning expenses."

Suddenly, a question pops into your mind. "Where does the money for the budget come from, though? I haven't seen an offering plate or anything."

"They don't tell me that sort of information. But with all the demons they've been summoning, and what kinds they are, I get the feeling we're being paid to do this. Just call it a hunch."

"I've got to admit," you say, "something about all of this strikes me as odd. Anyway, for now I should be getting back. Oh, I'm in summoning section five, room one."

"Got it, thanks. Oh, I'm Steve by the way. Great to meet ya!" He gives you a firm handshake. "I'll need a bit to get this all loaded up on the cart, but I'll be down there in about ten minutes. If you could, ah, make sure he's safe to be around, I'd appreciate it. Lust demons are a whole lot safer to be around than some of the other kinds, but just in case."

You let out a laugh and tell him you'll make sure, then head back to your summoning room. When you arrive, you are greeted by the sight of Belrye sitting on the stone floor, leaned back against the wall and slowly stroking his cock.

When he sees you, his eyes light up and he rises to his hooves. "Hello there, summoner! Are we getting a bed?"

You nod, then ask, "Why were you sitting on the floor? There's a nice chair right over here."

"Oh, um, I didn't know if it was okay to use it. I was always taught that if you are summoned, you shouldn't assume you can do things like sit on the furniture or eat the food."

"Well, you can definitely use whatever furniture you like in your room here. Sorry, I would have told you sooner, but I didn't realize you didn't know it was okay."

He stands up and walks over to the chair. "I'm really glad you're the one who summoned me. You seem so kind."

You give him a warm smile. "So, someone will be here in a few minutes with the bed and an extra chair for the table here. I figure that gives us a place to talk, or if you would like to share a dinner together or something. You probably shouldn't be jacking off like that when they get here." With a wink, you add, "Of course, once we have a bed, what do you say we get to know each other a bit better?"

"I'd like that," he replies, "I'd like that so, so much."

"You know, I probably should also look at getting some clothes for you. Like you can be naked around me all the time, but I'm sure others might want you to wear clothing of some sort."

He opens his mouth to reply, but is interrupted by a chime sound. "Oh, that must be the furniture." You walk over and open the door, seeing Steve with a large cart.

"Hey there, I'm here with your furniture," he says, wheeling the cart through the door. "And where is—oh! Sorry, I, uh, didn't expect you to be naked. Guess I probably should have." He stares at Belrye, before catching himself. "Oh, right. Anyway, here is your extra chair..." he says, taking it off the cart and setting it next to the table. It looks identical to the one that was already there, making a matched set. "And here is the bed. Let me get that put togeth—oh shit!"

Startled, you turn to see him standing on the ward, the carefully-drawn symbols smudged underneath. Steve is looking up in horror, the color gone from his face.

Belrye holds up his hands slowly, careful not to make any sudden movements. "It's okay. I'm friendly, and I'm not going to hurt you. Here, let me slowly step back." He takes one careful step back, his hooves clicking on the stone.

As the shock starts to pass, Steve asks, "Are you okay? I know you're not gonna hurt me, but I was worried I accidentally hurt you."

"Oh, okay," Belrye replies, his voice calm and still not making sudden movements, "That doesn't hurt me one bit. That was the ward, so really all you did was make it so now I can do a bunch of stuff I don't want to anyway."

"That's a huge relief," Steve says, shoulders slumping a bit. "Now, let me unload this bed for you." With remarkable speed, you watch as the bed is quickly assembled, ending with the white satin curtains being hung from the canopy frame.

"You must have put a lot of those together," you laugh.

"Eh, after the first fifty or sixty you get really fast at it," he laughs back. He turns to Belrye, and each introduces themself to the other. He then starts

wheeling his cart to the door. As you let him out, he jokes, "By the way, let me know if you need anything else! Your room has a lovely view, after all."

You close the door behind him, then turn to find Belrye already parting the curtains to peek inside. With him bent over to climb into the bed on hands and knees, you get a great look at his tail and butt. Steve certainly wasn't kidding about the view.

You decide to strip your clothing off and climb into bed, yourself. It takes you a minute to find the piece of wall that serves as a light switch, but after hitting it the two of you are plunged into pitch blackness.

"Oh wow, it's, uh, kinda darker than I expected."

Out of the blackness, you hear Belrye's voice. "Well, if we can't see each other, we're just gonna have to go by feel. I don't think either of us would mind. . . "

You reach out, and your hands gently touch one of his breasts. He lets out a soft moan, and you feel a hand brushing slowly down your side. He slides closer and whispers in your ear, "Explore as much as you like. Anywhere you want to touch, anything you want to do, I'm all yours."

"I think I'd like it to be your choice. I am perfectly happy, either way."

"Absolutely! Of course, if there are things you do want to change, I'm gonna need some lust to make that happen. Luckily, I think I know just where to get it," he replies, winking at you. "I think I'm gonna go ahead and keep the dick. I kinda like having it, to be honest."
